A Suicide's Lament.

FIGHTING has changed. On March 10, 1888, this writer saw John L. Sullivan and Charles Mitchell fight in a muddy, slippery twenty-four-foot ring on Baron Rothschild's training grounds near Chantilly in France. It was not like arrangements for tomorrow's fight.

Thirty or forty men stood around the ring. One was Billy Porter, the bank burglar, who afterwards died in the German salt mines. He had a revolver in each overcoat pocket, and notified those in Mitchell's corner that Sullivan was to have fair play. Sullivan got it.

THE men fought with bare fists soaked in walnut juice, and had long spikes on their shoes.

Sullivan requested Mitchell to "be a gentleman, you —— —— ——, if you can," when Mitchell drove a spike into Sullivan's instep.

The fight was under London prize ring rules, each round ending when either man went down with one knee on the ground. No gate receipts, no purse, only a side bet.

WHEN the fight ended in a draw both men were locked up by French gendarmes at Senlis, bombarded by Germans. This writer saw them there. The French jailer had taken away their silk handkerchiefs "to prevent their hanging themselves." Both wept. Both are dead. What would they think of a modern fight with $2,500,000 gate receipts?

FREDERICK GASTIER, a teacher of languages, killed himself, leaving written in correct Latin this, "I am nobody. I never was anybody."

That could be said truly in many languages by 999,999 people in a million. With few exceptions, nobody is anybody. We are human microbes doing work for which we were put on earth, then disappearing.

A microbe has no right to expect that he will ever be anybody, but the fact that he is nobody is no excuse for suicide.

MR. J. J. MITCHELL, able and conservative Chicago financier, who says stocks are too high, does not like "the antics" of the market. Ask Mr. Mitchell what he would charge for one year's option on 10,000 shares of General Motors, for instance.

EVERY well managed, necessary American concern is selling for less than it is worth. Ten years hence the country's wealth will be scores of billions greater than today, and that increased wealth will be reflected in prices of good securities.

SPEAKING of American wealth increases, the Chase National Bank dug out of an old vault yesterday a faded copy of its first report issued fifty years ago.

The Chase Bank then had in all $1,042,000. The same bank told the Comptroller of the Currency last June that it had one billion and forty-two million dollars. Every dollar the bank had fifty years ago has grown to a thousand dollars. That's how this country goes ahead. Many things that foolish men are selling short now, fifty years hence will be worth a thousand times what they are to-

Victims of successive shutouts administered by Dazzy Vance and Knoxville Bill Doak, the Pirates today were in no good mood for trifling as they prepared for their last clash of the season with the Dodgers. While it is true that Vance and Doak had more stuff to show the Pirate hitters than any two pitchers who have been on Fogarty Knoll for some time, it also is a fact that a club of championship proportions can look terrible when it is not hitting.

Yesterday was an ideal day for a spitball offering. The rather heavy atmosphere added to the break on Bill's saliva slant; in fact Knoxville's fair-haired son had too much on his

GermanAce Lands At Angora

ANGORA, Turkey, Sept. 21.—(AP.)—Lieut. Otto Koennecke, piloting the Caspar biplane Germania on a flight to the United States by way of the Orient, landed here today, completing the first stage of the flight.

Lieut. Koennecke made the 1,875-mile flight in slightly less than 18 hours, averaging about 100 miles an hour.

He and his companions, Count Solms-Laubach and Johannes Hermann, passed over the Black Sea, were heard above Constantinople shortly after 7 o'clock and landed at the Angora Airdrome less than two hours later.

The plane was in excellent condition.

Koennecke plans to leave Angora Friday for Tokio. The weather conditions will determine his route to Tokio.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 21.—With the Dempsey-Tunney return bout for the heavyweight championship of the world less than 48 hours away as this is being written, Chicago is a windier city than at probably any other time in its history. The winds are not those of nature, but rather of conversation. Everybody has something to say about the big battle and is saying it, and you'd be surprised by some of the things you hear on the street, at Rickard headquarters, in the hotel lobbies and virtually everywhere where there is standing room and a chance for an argument.

Deep, dark intrigue is stalking the boards. Perhaps not intrigue

RIVAL FACTIONS DIVIDE ALDERMANIC HONORS

The city administration divided honors with various revolting factions in the bitter battles for alderman and constable nominations, which were featured by gun battles and brawls.

The O'Malley-McManus faction, which carried the administration colors in the hot Second Ward battle, has defeated the Kenna-Anderson faction, according to available returns. James J. McManus seems to have won the Republican constable nomination by about 400 votes, although his opponent, Bernard Kenna, refused to admit defeat today.

WOODSIDE BEATS M'GOVERN

Returns from more than half the districts in the county indicate that Robert G. Woodside, organization candidate, has defeated Controller C. C. McGovern by a majority that may reach 25,000.

Out of 1,418 districts in the county, 1,193 reported: Woodside, 107,869; McGovern, 82,864; a lead of 25,005 for the former.

Still unreported are scores of borough and township precincts where McGovern is expected to increase his total materially, and nearly 200 Pittsburgh districts which probably will contribute large majorities to the organization candidates.

The controller, who centered his attack during the campaign upon County Commissioners Joseph G. Armstrong and E. V. Babcock, charging extravagance and waste in county affairs, surprised organization leaders with the battle he made against odds.

McGOVERN SURPRISES

He carried a majority of the boroughs and townships and made heavy inroads into territory within the city that had been counted upon to boost Woodside's majority. He carried at least seven wards in Pittsburgh—the Seventh, Eleventh, Thirteenth, Fourteenth, Nineteenth, Twenty-sixth and Twenty-eighth—with five others doubtful, the Tenth, Eighteenth, Twenty-seventh, Twenty-ninth and Thirtieth.

Babcock and Armstrong, targets of McGovern during the campaign, ran away from their six independent opponents, with former Sheriff Judd Bruff a very bad third. With only 87 districts missing the score was

MARTIN AND GRAY SMASH GANG AND WIN; M'GOVERN, DEFEATED, WANTS BALLOTS SEIZED

Delay in Returns Prompts Controller to Act for Seizure and Recount of Votes.

Beaten at the polls after he had shown surprising strength, County Controller C. C. McGovern indicated unmistakably today he intends to fight to the last ditch, when he announced that he would ask the courts to seize some 40 ballot boxes in five wards.

The controller reached this decision after he had been successful in obtaining a court order for seizure of the ballot box in the First district, Fourth ward.

The wards in which McGovern said he would ask for seizures were the Second, Third, Fourth, Sixth and Ninth, which includes "the Strip."

At 2:02 p. m., 18 hours after the polls closed, McGovern was still looking for the returns from the Second, Sixth and Ninth, all Strip wards, and he was prompted to investigate the Third and Fourth wards by the fact that in the former he was handed zeroes in several districts and low totals in the latter territory.

Seizure of the ballot boxes would mean a recount in each instance, under the election laws. The vote in the First District, Second Ward, is already assured a second tabulation following the ordered seizure today by Judge John A. Evans.

Attorney Frank J. McGirr, counsel for McGovern, presented a petition to the court signed by five voters from the ward asking for the seizure. The signers were Timothy Fahey, William Davis, M. V. Conroy, James Griffin and Marcus McTighe.

Election day itself was a hodge podge of arrests and minor clashes, but lacked the murderous ferocity of the preceding days.

The outstanding events of the day were the arrest of scores of officers and workers at the polls and the jailing of political leaders and members of the police bureau. Pat O'Malley, leader in the partisan war that Swearingen Leads Ticket for Judge; Three Independents May Land Places, Returns Show.

Judge Richard W. Martin, first choice of the attorneys of Allegheny county, smashed the organization slate to smithereens, finishing close to the leader of the ticket in yesterday's primary election.

Attorney Frank P. Patterson and Judge James H. Gray, independents, and Judge Nelson McVicar, who had the support of the organization, staged a close race for eighth and ninth places, according to returns from all but 234 precincts in the county.

Those returns showed Gray in eighth place, leading Patterson by 2,048 votes. Patterson in turn was leading McVicar by only 85 votes.

W. Heber Dithrich, regarded as the first choice of County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, and E. C. Chalfant, personal selection of Mayor Charles H. Kline, ran far behind. Their defeat is certain.

Judge Swearingen led the ticket, having 117,511 votes when 1,184 districts were reported. At that time

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 21.—(INS.)—On the request of his attorney, the case of John A. Bell, Carnegie bank embezzler, was continued today by the State Board of Pardons. It was the second continuance granted in the case.

A letter from former Gov. Gifford Pinchot protesting against a pardon for Bell and asserting that the aged banker had never served a day of his six and a half year sentence in jail, was received and filed with other data on the case.

Other cases continued by the board included Antonio Callendo and Angelo Jackson, both of Allegheny county, and both of whom were convicted of first degree murder and given the death sentence, later commuted.

MARTIN SMASHES SLATE

Judge Martin was second, with Judge Josiah Cohen 586 votes behind him.

The result depends upon the character of the districts that have not yet reported. They include a number in the First and Third wards, some in the boroughs and scattering township precincts. Unusually heavy votes in rural districts that reported late led to a sudden rise in the Gray stock.

The independent candidates walked away with the East End wards. Martin got a tremendous vote in the Fourteenth. So did Gray and Patterson. They broke the slate in a majority of the boroughs and townships and in every residential ward.

FLIERS DIE IN DERBY CRASH

JAY RADIKE — RICHARD HUDSON

Richard E. Hudson, pilot (right), and Jay Radike, passenger, of St. Clair, Mich., were killed today when their Buhl airster, plane No. 1 in the Class A, New York to Spokane air derby, crashed near Long Valley, N. J. Hudson, whose home was in Marysville, Mich., died while on the way to the hospital. Radike was found dead in the machine when ambulance doctors arrived.

DRY CZARINA REGAINS POWER

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—A small, attractive woman, with a firm chin, bright keen eyes, but mild mannered, has become "queen" of the federal prohibition forces.

She is Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant United States Attorney General, who, in addition to her many duties at the Justice Department, now dictates and dominates portions of the government's dry program.

Working her way into the limelight from the position of an obscure school teacher, Mrs. Willebrandt at the age of 28 has become perhaps the most powerful woman in the government—a modern Portia.

Bootleggers tremble at her name, for Mrs. Willebrandt is chief prosecutor for the government in liquor law violation cases.

A keen student of prohibition problems, Mrs. Willebrandt has been working quietly to co-operate with the Treasury in law enforcement work. When Gen. L. C. Andrews was dry czar, however, the two had divided views.

Mrs. Willebrandt was kept in the background and the prohibition unit, indirectly, asked her to keep hands off its affairs.

But as in her many other battles of life, the Assistant Attorney General came victorious from the affray. When Andrews left office, Prohibition Commissioner Doran sought Mrs. Willebrandt's aid.

Now, no prohibition rules and regulations are issued by the Treasury without first being approved by Mrs. Willebrandt. On all important matters of policy she is consulted by Dr. Doran.

Autoists Must Report Crashes After Jan. 1

Pittsburgh motorists will be required to report all automobile accidents, except those in which no person is injured or in which the property damage is less than $50, under the provisions of the new state vehicle code effective next January 1, according to Burton W. Marsh, city traffic engineer.

The penalty for violation of the law will be a fine of $10 plus costs, or not over five days' imprisonment.

Any driver involved in an automobile crash in which a person is injured or in which the damage is over $50, will be required to forward a report to police headquarters within 24 hours.

For the protection of persons involved, the law specifies that the reports shall be without prejudice, and for the information of the police department alone, and not open for public inspection.

The fact that such reports have been made, will be admissible in legal evidence "solely to prove compliance with this act," the new code says. They are not admissible in evidence in any trial, civil or criminal, arising out of such accidents.

BROWNSVILLES FACE PROBE

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Sept. 21.—(AP)—A grand jury probe into election irregularities is threatened as a result of yesterday's primaries in the Brownsvilles. More than 100 voters were disfranchised through alleged negligence of assessors. In the First Ward of South Brownsville alone 108 persons who have voted regularly for years were unable to do so because the ward assessor failed to place their names on the rolls.

State police were called to Orient to calm a disturbance when the polls closed there at 4 p. m. yesterday because of violence.

PERSONNEL BODY TO HOLD RALLY

The Pittsburgh Personnel Association, with a membership of 200, will hold its first rally meeting of the season tomorrow evening in McCann's restaurant. N. V. B. ELEVENTH TUSCARAWAS PARALYSIS VICTIM DIES

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., Sept. 21.—Cyrus Domer, 36, died at his home here yesterday, the eleventh infantile paralysis victim in Tuscarawas county since the recent outbreak of the disease here. Two new cases in rural districts were quarantined today.

North Side Man Files Suit for Incubator Baby

Simon B. Layton of the North Side has filed a petition in Common Pleas Court to obtain possession of his child, Juanita B. Layton, who was raised in an incubator. Juanita was born in St. John's Hospital on March 18, 1925, and weighed one pound and seven ounces.

Layton says Elva Rickley of Ross township has had possession of the child for more than a year and refuses to give him the custody of the same.

Blanche Layton, mother of the child, died three days after Juanita was born. Layton, through his attorney, Martin Croissant, has asked the court to issue a writ of habeas corpus to obtain the custody of the child, who now is 2½ years old.

CRAZED, HE SHOOTS 3; 1 DIES

By International News Service.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Sept. 21.—As the result of a shooting affray here last night in which a crazed Negro opened fire on city police officers, wounding three when they attempted to arrest him, Officer Charles Karmanik, 43, died today at the Lee Hospital from wounds in the abdomen, chest, bladder and lungs, and Officer Tom Biczko, 44, is near death at the Memorial Hospital from wounds of the chest and lungs. Death is expected momentarily.

The third officer, John Milkovich, 22, wounded in the neck and chin, was reported in fair condition at the Lee Hospital.

The Negro, Robert Armstrong, was arrested after two hours of battle in which tear gas, fire hose and riot guns were used.

QUAILEY WINS IN FOURTH

Kline administration, suffered two other defeats, but made up for them in the Fourteenth Ward where his candidate, Sol Goldstein, walked away with the aldermanic fight. Kenna's candidates for alderman in the Fourth and Seventh wards, the latter his home territory, were swamped.

The city's administration worst defeat came in the Tenth, where the Donahoe faction, organized to fight Mayor Charles H. Kline, easily nominated William Scott, the administration candidate for alderman finishing third, according to unofficial returns.

First Ward

Thomas A. Flanigan defeated Alderman A. M. Maloney for alderman in the First Ward by 120 votes complete unofficial figures show. Jack Snyder won in a field of six candidates for constable in the ward.

Fourth Ward

Dr. C. B. Quailey, supported by State Senator James J. Coyne, walked away with the Fourth Ward aldermanic contest. With four out of 31 districts missing, the vote was: Quailey, 2,970; John H. Carr, incumbent, 2,105.

Seventh Ward

Alderman Charles A. Burke, who was supported by the city administration, was renominated in the Seventh Ward. The total vote was: Burke, 2,445; Boyle, 133; Loughney, 251; Zuker, 153. George W. Owens was nominated for constable.

Tenth Ward

The Kline administration suffered a crushing defeat in the Tenth Ward, where William Scott, supported by the Donahoe faction, easily won the aldermanic contest. With only one district out of 26 missing, the vote in the ward was: Scott, 2,686; Ford, 1,536; Bailey, the administration entry, 1,367.

Fourteenth Ward

Sol Goldstein won the Fourteenth Ward aldermanic contest, leading a field of six. With 3 out of 24 districts missing the vote was: Goldstein, 2,919; P. F. Casey, 1,465; Alderman R. C. Dever, 1,216.

Sixteenth Ward

Alderman George J. Levake, of the Sixteenth Ward, serving by appointment, claims nomination over William J. Hughes in a close contest. Unofficial figures reported by him are: Levake, 2,750; Hughes, 2,112, with all districts in. Hughes also claims election.

Twenty-Second Ward

The hottest fight on the North Side, that for constable in the Twenty-second Ward, was won by Dan McGeary, supported by Ward Chairman John O'Donnell and the city administration, who ousted Edward H. Ross, incumbent, supported by Chris McCormick, ward secretary. With one district missing, the vote was: McGeary, 2,329; Ross, 1,487.

Twenty-Fifth Ward

Alderman A. W. Headley was renominated in the Twenty-fifth Ward, leading Roy Noel by 178 votes, with Robert Helfrey third. The score was: Headley, 1,389; Helfrey, 1,095; Noel, 1,211.

Twenty-Ninth Ward

Albert J. Henning apparently won a close aldermanic contest in the new Twenty-ninth Ward. With one district missing, unofficial returns show: Henning, 1,261; Harry Closs, 1,148, Joseph Lingenfesser, 523.

Shields, of Wilkinsburg, received an unexpectedly large vote, especially in the Tenth legislative district, the home of both men. Samuel D. Foster had little trouble disposing of John Murphy for the Recorder of Deeds nomination. District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner, Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell and Prothonotary John Vogt, seeking re-election, and John Francies for County Treasurer were unopposed.

McGovern Resumes Audit

Feverish post-election activity in an adjoining office did not prevent County Controller C. C. McGovern from resuming his audit into the county's finances this morning.

Interrupting his election return vigil in the county commissioners' office, McGovern summoned Joseph Gausna, county road division superintendent, and questioned him, futilely, about charges that Gausna had sold and delivered county material for private contracting work.

Gausna denied having ever transacted business with H. H. W. Schuchman, who at a previous audit session testified that he had purchased three carloads of county slag from Gausna. When questioned as to whether any of the men subordinate to him had dealt with Schuchman, Gausna's attorney advised the road superintendant not to answer.

Failing to get replies to other questions, McGovern adjourned the session until 3 o'clock this afternoon, when Gausna will be recalled.

rages in the Second Ward, was arrested and jailed on charges of violating election laws. He later was released on bail furnished by State Senator James J. Coyne.

Thomas Flanigan, aldermanic candidate in the First Ward, was arrested on misdemeanor charges by supporters of Alderman A. M. Maloney, seeking re-election. Police Inspector J. P. Clancey saw the jail from inside a cell after a row at the Hancock School, where the election board was disrupted when he arrested two of its members in connection with the killing of George A. Faber, of the North Side, by gangsters last Friday night.

POLICEMEN ARRESTED

A score of city patrolmen and one fireman were arrested by fellow-officers for partisan activity at election houses. All persons placed under arrest were taken into court, where Judges A. B. Reid and John A. Evans quickly disposed of all cases by ordering the accused to jail or accepting bail for their appearance for trial. It is not probable that a single charge will be pressed after the election excitement has died.

The death of Faber and that of John Rohan of 3723 Orpwood street, who was shot when thugs showered the corner of Forbes and Atwood streets with bullets Sunday night, are the only events of the murderous political gang feud that are likely to reach the courts. Several men are under arrest in connection with the killings.

WOMAN HURT IN TRUCK, CAR CRASH ASKS $15 000

Injuries alleged to have been suffered September 2, when she was a passenger on a Butler street trolley car, were the basis of a $15,000 damage suit filed today against the Pittsburgh Railways Company by Mrs. J. A. Hostetter and her husband. The former avers she was thrown from her seat when the trolley car collided with a truck at Penn avenue and Thirty-second street.

POLICE TRY TO LINK AUTO AND SHOE SHOP BOMBINGS

McKees Rock police are seeking to link the bombing that occurred Monday on Wylie avenue, when the automobile of Joseph Pangallo, 35, of Church avenue, McKees Rocks, was blown up, with the blast in the shoe repair shop of Joe Viola, of Dohrman avenue, McKees Rocks, several weeks ago. Pangallo was seriously injured.

NON-STOP FLIERS HOP TODAY

GLENDIVE, Mont., Sept. 21.—(AP.)—Eight airplanes, racing from New York to Spokane in Class B of the national air races, left Glendive, their overnight stop, at 8 o'clock this morning, rising from the field at one-minute intervals.

They expected to make Billings, Mont., a five-minute stop, within three hours.

The eight planes were piloted by Leslie Miller, of Des Moines, and C. W. Myers, of Detroit, who have been leading all the way and by J. S. Charles, of Richmond, Va.; Eugene Dettmer, Tarrytown, N. Y.; Kenneth R. Unger, Madison, N. Y.; William H. Emery, Jr., Bradford, Pa.; Jack Ashcroft, Towanda, Pa., and E. G. Knapp, Ypsilanti, Mich.

Unger and Ashcroft arrived this morning from Bismarck, N. D., where they spent the night. The other six spent the night at Glendive.

BALLOUGH LEADS CLASS A

ABERDEEN, S. D., Sept. 21.—(AP.)—Holding their stops sharply to the compulsory five-minute minimum, five leaders in the Class A air derby, New York to Spokane, were only a few minutes apart when they left here, with E. E. Ballough, Chicago, leading.

Ballough's official time of arrival was 9:32:30 a. m., three minutes more than two hours from the time he left St. Paul, and he took off for Miles City, Mont., after refueling at 8:38:30 a. m. He was not out of sight before C. W. Holman, St. Paul, brought his plane down at 8:42:20, followed by N. B. Namer, Spokane, at 8:46:30 a. m.; Tex Rankin, Portland, Ore., at 8:50, and J. P. Wood, Wausau, Wis., 8:50.

With refueling and servicing quickly accomplished, each flier got away promptly at the expiration of his five-minute minimum, shortly before the next three planes landed in this order.

Pilot E. W. Cleveland, Cleveland, O., with two passengers, was the last of the nine Class A planes to make the Aberdeen stop, landing at 9:19 a. m., after the other eight had departed. Cleveland stayed here 15 minutes.

Fighting gamely to overcome the advantage of leaders, the trailing planes in the Class B Derby, New York to Spokane, took up the long Westward grind again early today with few exceptions.

Two planes took off from the St. Paul airport, five over-night visitors at Fargo got away and another plane, unreported last night when forced down at a small Minnesota town, cleared the Fargo field, while others scattered over the course were tuning up.

From St. Paul R. E. Dake, Pittsburgh, entry No. 55, hopped off at 7:36:48 a. m., and was followed at 8:12:40 a. m. by M. H. McMecham, Yakima, Wash., No. 12, while five other entries left Fargo this morning.

NON-STOP FLIERS READY

By International News Service.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., Sept. 21.—Three entries were ready today for participation in the non-stop flight from Roosevelt Field to Spokane, Wash., scheduled to start this afternoon. This is the third and final race in the air derby.

The three fliers were Eddie Stinson and "Duke" Schiller, with Stinson-Detroiters, and Steve Lacey, of Hinckley, Ill., with an Airking plane. Schiller's plane is the Royal Windsor.

Lacey, flying "solo," arrived here from Cleveland last night. The National Airways Service of Lomax, is backing the flight.

Jack Rand, who is supposed to be flying here from San Diego, Cal., in a rebuilt Waterhouse cruiser, was many hours overdue early today. He is entered in the non-stop race to Spokane.

Lacey's Airking biplane was ruled out of the Dole race from California to Hawaii at the last minute because it did not have a great enough gasoline capacity.

Woman Loses by Single Vote in School Fight

Women of Oakdale who backed the candidacy of Mrs. Norah Greenfield for the Republican nomination for school director failed by a lone vote to tie the contest, returns today disclosed. Mrs. Greenfield received 144 votes, Joseph K. Robb 145 and George Hoffman, Jr., 188, the latter two, incumbents, being nominated. The men had the backing of the Allied Civic Club. S. J. Campbell was nominated borough tax collector, receiving 123 votes as against 105 for Richard F. Lescallette and 45 for J. E. Fox. Robert Robinson, B. M. Hopper and S. H. Watters, the latter a brother of Sam Watters, secretary of the Pittsburgh baseball club, were nominated for Council.

AIR DERBY ENTRY STRIKES TREE ON HIS WAY HOME

WHEELING, W. Va., Sept. 21.—Forced out of the national air derby, Lloyd F. Hughes, Bridgeport, O., crashed in his Waco plane on the homeward journey near Lloydsville, O., yesterday. Hughes, attempting to land after dark, crashed into a tree. He escaped with bruises.

Queen a Day, Asks Divorce

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—(AP.)—The original "Miss Chicago of 1927," who, after having been picked as Chicago's most beautiful girl was disqualified because she had been married secretly while the contest was in progress, has begun legal action to break the marriage which robbed her of her title.

Estelle Kosloff was the original "Miss Chicago of 1927" who, contrary to the contest rules, was married while still a contestant. In a bill for divorce which she has had her attorney draw against Earl McBath, the girl who was "Miss Chicago" for day charges cruelty.

"It wasn't enough that he cost me the title of 'most beautiful girl in Chicago,'" Mrs. McBath said, "but he expected me to live in a hotel room and cook over a gas jet and do his washing and like it."

After Miss Kosloff's disqualification, Miss Myrtle Vaisted, who was adjudged second in the beauty contest, was crowned "Miss Chicago" and sent to Atlantic City for the "Miss America" competition.

SUITOR, SPURNED, SLAYS GIRL'S SISTER

SHOOTS FATHER WHO FORBADE ATTENTIONS

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 21—(AP.)—A dance hall meeting two years ago between Elmer Peterson, 24, of Chicago, and Kathlyn Foley, 22, of Milwaukee, today had mantled the Foley home in death and had made Peterson a hunted man.

Janet Foley, sister of Kathlyn, was shot to death last night when Peterson, so the police were told, forced his way into the Foley house. George Foley, father of the young woman, was wounded, perhaps mortally, by another bullet when he attempted to prevent Peterson's attentions being forced upon Kathlyn.

Peterson, forbidden by Mr. and Mrs. Foley to call on Kathlyn, rang the Foley bell last night. Janet answered, and, according to the story told to the police by Kathlyn, informed Peterson he could not enter.

Peterson, however, brushed past Janet and confronted Mr. Foley in the rear of the house.

"You'll see me all right," Peterson cried, according to Kathlyn's version of the shooting.

Peterson, she said, whipped out his revolver and shot Mr. Foley in the throat. Kathlyn, too frightened to scream, remained seated as Peterson turned the weapon on Janet and shot her dead, Kathlyn told police. Then he forced Kathlyn into an adjoining room, demanded that she tell him where her mother was and told her how much he loved her. Mrs. Foley was not in the house when the shooting took place.

Kathlyn said Peterson kissed her goodby, told her he was coming back for her and then fled.

McElhany, Shaler township, left $10,750 to her children and grandchildren. George Huggins, Fawn township, willed an $5,500 estate to his wife and children, and Ella May Dorsey, Pittsburgh, left $8,000 to her husband and made several small charitable bequests.

LEGION URGES AIR DEFENSE SECRETARY

PALAIS DU TROCADERO, Paris, Sept. 21—(AP.)—The aviation report of the national defense committee of the American Legion presented at today's session of the Legion convention called for the consolidation of all branches of national defense into one department with secretaries for each branch including aviation. It precipitated a spirited fight.

Former Brig.-Gen. William Mitchell, long the stormy petrel of the American aviation service, was the man who started the fireworks, and for some minutes feeling ran high until finally upon the motion of Legionaire Gilligan of Ohio, the former general's remarks were stricken from the record.

MEETING IN UPROAR

An attempt to obtain a vote, vive voce, proved an utter failure several times and a roll call had to be resorted to, an amendment to the report being finally defeated, 622 to 298, and the report adopted. Several states split on the roll call and some changed sides during it.

Gen. Mitchell, asking for the adoption of the recommendation without amendment shouted: "A department of aviation at once under a direct cabinet officer is what is wanted."

The former air chief, speaking with spirit, argued that while Europe was honeycombed with a network of "so-called commercial air lines, which from night to morning may be turned into military weapons," the United States has been standing still.

"It has been proved that a $15,000 airplane can destroy in a few hours $70,000,000 worth of battleships," he shouted.

BRIDGE HOLDUP NETS $200

Charles Chewingum, 45, of Gary, Ind., a native of Czecho-Slovakia, who dictated to North Side police the spelling of his name, told a story of abuse and robbery when picked up at Federal and Lacock streets early today by Patrolman Michael Welsh. He was bleeding from a deep cut in the back of his head and was taken to the Allegheny General Hospital. Chewingum said he came here last night from Gary to visit the Czecho-Slovakian consul regarding a legacy from his mother in Austria, and while walking across the Seventh Street Bridge was attacked by two men who robbed him of $200 and a gold watch.

COLONEL RALPH ISHAM brings to America the "Boswell Papers." Unpublished writings, insured for $570,000 and worth it.

Samuel Johnson, thanks to Boswell, lives in the minds of thousands now as he lived in London in the Eighteenth Century. And now, as then, people are familiar with his conversation that never read his books.

As time passes we know more about Johnson's personality, less about his writings. That's unusual. His conversation was marvelously direct; his writings rather "high-stepping." Burke said of Johnson's descriptions of women: "All his ladies are Johnsons in petticoats."

JOHNSON is not read as he should be. Young advertisement writers might try their hands at writing better prose than the opening lines of Rasselas—written by Johnson in a few hours to pay for his mother's funeral.

"Ye who listen with credulity to the whispers of fancy and pursue with eagerness the phantoms of hope; who expect that age will perform the promises of youth, and that the deficiencies of the present day will be supplied by the morrow—attend the history of Rasselas, Prince of Abyssinia."

MR. MORROW gives up his partnership with J. Pierpont Morgan & Company to accept a poorly paid job as minister to Mexico. This he does to oblige his friend and classmate, President Coolidge.

Wilson Letters Echo Crises of War

Drums were beating; towns, villages, great cities were re-echoing the call of war. Europe was a smudge of mangled men and the world was shivering with the hysteria of panic.

But behind the doors of America's White House, a man was thinking his way and the way of the nation, calmly, deliberately.

Woodrow Wilson, president of the United States, was writing letters to his associates, his friends, his relatives, the nation's representatives, in the war zone and elsewhere.

And now, these letters, compiled by Ray Stannard Baker, portraying in vivid relief the thoughts, the hopes, the history of the War President and the country he was serving, will begin next Sunday in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. Installments will be printed daily and Sunday thereafter. In the hands of Western Pennsylvanians will be placed the history of a man and a nation as they passed through their crises of war.

LABOR OF 3 YEARS

The "Life and Letters of Woodrow Wilson" is a gigantic work. For three years Mr. Baker toiled over his sources of information. His card catalogue alone had 40,000 cards. He was gleaning his material for this mighty historical work from:

The confidential file—29,000 Wilson letters and papers which were accessible only to the President and his personal secretary.

The general file—25,000 letters and documents which were kept in the executive office of the White House.

The secret personal file—16,000 letters, papers and memoranda which were seen by no one except Mr. Wilson, assisted by Mrs. Wilson.

The peace file—Thousands of documents relating to the Peace Conference.

The last file—15,000 letters, papers and memorials kept after Mr. Wilson left office, in 1921.

The early file—letters, manuscripts, papers kept by Mr. Wilson before he became President of the United states.

"Life and Letters" begins Sunday and continues daily. Begin reading the most illuminating historical document of our time.

CRAZED MARINE KILLS JUDGE

OWENSBORO, KY., Sept. 21—(AP.)—James Johnson, 45, former United States Marine, mentally deranged over fancied wrongs he has suffered, was charged today with the murder of Judge J. L. Patton, 42, county judge of Ohio county, who died last night from pistol bullet wounds inflicted by the former service man.

Judge Patton was shot during a session of the Ohio county fiscal court at Hartford, Ky., yesterday afternoon, where Johnson appeared to seek payment of a pension which he drew from the government.

Hot Tilt For Director of Poor

Albert T. Lorch, organization candidate and bandit-shooting justice of the peace of Allison Park, and Harry H. Dixon, of Millvale, present incumbent, who was ditched by the Republican leaders, tangled in one of the closest contests of the day for one of the three Republican nominations for directors of the poor. The latter, on the face of the returns, is the winner.

Only 622 precincts participated in that fight, poor directors being voted upon only in the boroughs, townships and third class cities.

The re-nomination of W. L. Henderson and J. Clyde Miller, incumbents, who have the organization support, seems to be assured on the basis of available returns. Out of the 622 districts, 155 reported: Henderson 51,90[illegible], Miller 47,621, Dixon 27,470, Lorch 22,486.

YOUTH SAYS BRIDE IS PRISONER

Forcibly held incommunicado in her home by her mother, despite the protests of herself and her young husband, is the story told by William Bender, 17, of 294 Emerson street, regarding his young bride of a week, Mrs. Jeannette Bender, 14, of 7108 Hermitage street. And to free her from durance he has filed habeas corpus proceedings in court here.

Telling of his troubles, the youthful husband said that he met his bride, then Jeannette Robbins, at a picnic of the Westinghouse High School, where she is a pupil. The meeting took place last June and, according to Bender, he courted Miss Robbins from that day until their wedding.

She went to visit friends in New York in August, but they exchanged frequent letters, since they had already agreed to get married upon her return here, he avers. She returned on September 6 and the next week was spent in making furtive plans for an elopement.

On September 13 Miss Robbins stayed away from her classes and met her fiance, who had taken the day off from his work, and together they drove to Butler, where they were married by A. A. Marshall, a justice of the peace, Bender says.

They returned here, going to the home of the young groom's father, Charles G. Bender, at 115 Mathilda street, where a brother, Charles E. Bender, was dispatched to the bride's home to notify Mrs. Florence Robbins, the girl's mother, of the nuptials.

Mrs. Robbins, accompanied by an aunt of the bride, went to the Bender home and, after much discussion, prevailed on the young husband to allow his wife to go back to her home until the next day, when he could claim her once more, he says.

He has not been allowed to speak to his wife since that time, he says, although he has been to her home several times and has called on the telephone about twice daily. His visit the day after the wedding was particularly unfruitful, he says, his wife being hurried to another part of the house as soon as he entered.

But he has some consolation, he says; he did get to exchange a few words with her the day her mother was served with a warrant in the habeas corpus proceedings. And beside that, he hints at a sort of grapevine wireless which carries messages between him and his wife. But he is sure that Monday, when the case is heard, that their difficulties will come to an end.

PINCHOT JUDGES LEADING IN LUZERNE

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Sept. 21.—(AP.)—On scattered returns from Luzerne county, Judge John S. Fine, Pinchot appointee, has apparently won both the Democratic and Republican nominations. Judge Clarence D. Coughlin, Pinchot appointee, is second on the Republican ticket with a large lead over his 11 opponents. For the third place on the Republican judicial ticket Abram Salsburg and former Major John A. Kosek are running neck and neck. Three judicial candidates are to be nominated.

For mayor of Wilkes-Barre Daniel L. Hart, incumbent, has the Democratic nomination. The Republican nomination is in doubt, Joseph Shultz having a slight lead over Hart on returns from less than one-third of the 68 districts.

The county commissioner fight between D. M. Lesser and S. S. Hess, Republican organization candidates, and Leslie Harrison and W. H. Martin, anti-administration, is close.

YORK COUNTY

CLARION COUNTY

CLARION, Pa., Sept. 21.—(AP.)—Returns indicate the following results: Republicans — Treasurer, Norman Rea; commissioners, D. G. Burns and M. M. Yemy; Prothonotary, Hyde Furman; auditors, B. G. Haun and Frank Kirkpatrick; register and recorder, William Thompson.

Falls 40 Feet

HOMER BOLES

Playing on steep slope of Monument Hill, Homer Boles, 9, of 837 Tobin street, plunged 40 feet to concrete yard of Daniel Webster School, which he attended. At Allegheny General Hospital it was said he had fractured his skull.

Democrats—Treasurer, M. C. Rhea; commissioners, T. B. Howard and H. J. Mitchell; prothonotary, D. E. Elliott; register and recorder, Margaret Curll; auditors, Robert McFarland and D. E. Alt.

ARMSTRONG COUNTY

Kittanning, Pa., Sept. 21.—(AP.)—W. C. McGarvey is leading his two opponents for the Republican nomination for register and recorder of Armstrong county, in returns received. For the Republican nomination for prothonotary the vote for the same districts gave: R. H. McGraw, 1,196; Harry P. Bechtel, 511.

WESTMORELAND COUNTY

GREENSBURG, Pa., Sept. 21.—(Special.)—On the basis of returns from 75 out of 213 districts in Westmoreland county, it was apparent this morning that the hand-picked slate of the Republican organization had been completely victorious in Tuesday's primary. These returns gave the nominations to Ray E. Johnston, Latrobe, sheriff; Philip C. King, Parnassus, county treasurer; W. C. Henderson, Greensburg, county register of wills; Garfield A. McDowell, Greensburg, county controller; Mrs. Emma E. Mowry, Derry, recorder of deeds, and Dr. James Harkins, Mt. Pleasant, coroner.

Greensburg's nomination of new city officers, the borough changing to a third-class city, was also a regular Republican victory.

INDIANA COUNTY

INDIANA, Pa., Sept. 21.—In the hardest fought primary election ever held in Indiana county, home of Gov. John S. Fisher, the Republican organization candidates came out second best with the exception of the fight for the sheriff nomination. Elmer Borland, organization candidate, had a lead of 2,565 over Ben S. Pollock, his nearest opponent, in this fight, with 40 of 75 districts heard from. There were nine Republican aspirants.

Elmer Allison, who has opposed the organization, was gaining rapidly on J. T. Stewart, the closest of his six opponents, for the nomination for treasurer as returns filtered in. His plurality, with half of the districts reported, was 1,875.

James M. Marshall, the only Civil War veteran remaining in local politics, was leading the organization candidate, Charles Bentz, for the nomination for county commissioner by a margin of 1,250, with half of the vote accounted for.

Officially Gov. Fisher and his leading lieutenants have remained neutral during the bitter campaign.

CLEARFIELD COUNTY

CLEARFIELD, Pa., Sept. 21.—Unofficial returns from scattered Clearfield county districts indicated close contests for Republican nominations. Following are the unofficial figures for 41 of the 112 districts:

Prothonotary—Stewart W. Ralston, 2,742; Carl Anderson, 2,555.

Controller—A. G. Woodward, 2,384; J. L. Harmon, 1,574; Walter Lobb, 1,232.

County Commissioner — Frank Krant, 1,108; George Minn, 1,050; J. C. Gatehouse, 944; John Boyce, 515; W. T. Stewart, 892.

FAYETTE COUNTY

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Sept. 21.—(AP.)—The "Organization" Republican ticket swept Fayette county in yesterday's primary, with the possible exception of Judge J. W. Dawson, Republican candidate for Orphans Court. Returns from 62 out of 115 districts give the following:

Common Pleas judge, Hudson, 11,567; Brown, 2,525; Orphans Court judge, Dawson, 7,689; Parshall, 6,961; District Attorney, Rosenberg, 8,154; Newell, 6,946; Sheriff, Aubrey, 7,571; Hackney, 4,880. For County Commissioner, George W. Hibbs and John S. Langley, incumbents, are far ahead of H. R. Sackett and F. E. Davison. Dr. S. A. Baltz has won the Coroner nomination over E. T. Grietzner.

Democratic returns are too scattered to define a result, but W. H. McClelland, incumbent, appears to have won against a field of five.

WASHINGTON COUNTY

WASHINGTON, Pa., Sept. 21.—The day after the battle of ballots in Washington county primaries finds the results definitely determined in every contest in Washington county. J. Elmer Johnston, of Canonsburg, and James W. Walker, of West Pike Run township, supported by the Republican organization for a third term, had triumphed over a field of five others by a large margin. Other Republican nominations made certain by returns available early this morning were: John O'Neill, Washington, for treasurer; Robert J. Coulson, Donora, for register of wills; E. G. McGregor, Washington, clerk of courts; William B. Baker, Washington, for coroner, Matthew Wilson, of North Strabane, for poor director; George S. Chaney, for county surveyor; and Ernest McNary, of Canonsburg, for prothonotary.

Seventy-one out of 179 precincts this morning showed the following: Commissioner, Warrick, 2,349; Bertanzetti, 1,399; Wickersham, 2,374; Luellen, 3,292; Berry, 1,349; Johnston, 6,506; Walker, 5,266; treasurer, Clark, 4,965; O'Neill, 5,775; clerk of courts, Snads, 2,468; Carter, 1,482; McGregor, 6,748; coroner, Baker, 6,942; Breese, 1,906; Armour, 2,089; register, Coulson, 5,696; Tombaugh, 6,217; district attorney, Burchinal, 7,215; Judson, 3,560; director of the poor, Wilson, 3,075; Chaney, 2,127; Burkhamer, 432; Wray, 2,565; Jones, 1,965; surveyor, Day, 4,281; Chaney, 5,528.

The Democratic and other parties had candidates for only a few of the offices.

MERCER COUNTY

MERCER, Pa., Sept. 21.—(Special.)—With only scattered returns from the heavy primary vote of yesterday, all elective officers in Mercer county remained in doubt today. Eagleston was leading for sheriff, Mrs. Belle Emery for clerk of courts and Mrs. Daisy Morse for prothonotary. Leo McKay and Robert Gilkey were running even for district attorney. In Sharon early returns indicated Mayor Frank Gilbert had been nominated for re-election.

GREENE COUNTY

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Sept. 21.—Returns from 30 out of 44 precincts in Greene county show: District attorney, C. R. Hughes, 2,423; Frank Throckmorton, 1,670; county commissioners, J. M. Scott, 1,766; N. P. Headley, 1,239; William Howel, 1,067; James Noony, 952; T. J. Ross, 831; Jacob Yeager, 615; A. P. Gilbgly, 571; Henry Johnson, 375; county treasurer, A. C. Cole, 1,780; Frank A. Ryan, 1,120; Charles Sadets, 837; clerk of courts, Russell Roberts, 2,048; John F. Blair, 1,748; F. W. Patterson, 623.

The only contest on the Republican ticket was for minority county commissioner, with Paul Deibold, in-

CASE LOOKED HOPELESS

Gas Crowding Patient's Heart—Nurse Gives BELL-ANS for Indigestion—Gets Sure Relief

Cleveland, O., Aug. 28, 1927.—

"I have been a private nurse for 20 years and am on the go all the time, both in private homes and hospitals. For the last seven years I have always carried in my kit a bottle of Bell-Ans as I have always found them very useful as well as effective. And every place I have used them you can rest assured there is a bottle in that home now

In July I was called to a very small hospital for an old man. When I arrived the patient was suffering with nausea and greatly suffering from gas and it was crowding the heart. The case looked hopeless. I began giving Bell-Ans and in less than an hour my patient was sleeping and is now well and working. But every day he still takes his Bell-Ans. All that I have ever used were my own but I know it to be a fact they have been the means of saving many a life. Wherever I have used them they are now a household remedy.

While out on my last case I ate some cucumbers which later caused me some distress. I took Six tablets out of my kit and in a few minutes was as good as new. Will be glad at any time to write you a testimonial without charge for publication.

I thank you."

STATE MEETING OF D. A. R. GETS UNDER WAY

By Universal Service.

BEDFORD, Pa., Sept. 21.—The thirty-first Pennsylvania State Conference of the Daughters of the American Revolution at the Bedford Springs Hotel is proving one of the largest in the history of the society.

The Adam Holliday, Colonel John Proctor, Fort Roberdeau, Standing Stone and Bedford chapters are hostesses to the conference, called to order today by Mrs. N. Howland Brown, state regent, after bugle call and processional.

Burgess S. R. Longenecker welcomed the delegates to Bedford, one of the oldest towns west of the Susquehanna River, site of Fort Bedford, the base of operations of Gen. Braddock and Gen. Forbes against Fort Duquesne in the French and Indian wars.

The greetings of the Sons of the American Revolution will be extended by Howard Cessna, an attorney by education but a farmer on a large scale by preference and a descendant of Maj. John Cessna, who served through the Revolution at the head of troops from this part of the state.

Hoover I. Smith of Altoona, commander of Charles R. Rowan Post No. 228, greeted the delegates for the American Legion.

A musical program was rendered last night.

BUS SPEEDS UP STREET CAR

By Universal Service.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 21.—Detroiters are being schooled in the art of street car riding, following inauguration Sunday of the new express railway service on Jefferson avenue. The general verdict seems to be that the system is speedy, efficient and time saving.

Only six stops are made in seven miles and persons desiring to board a street car at any place between these stops may board a motor coach which will take them to the nearest express car station. The fare is six cents on the coach which includes a free transfer to the street car.

General Manager D. A. Smith of the street railway company stated that the proposition is fundamentally sound and its efficiency has been thoroughly proven in the three days' trial. From 10 to 15 minutes is saved on the seven-mile run.

GRETNA PARSON INDICTED

ELKTON, IND., Sept. 21.—(AP.)—The Rev. Richard T. Western, former "marrying parson" of this Gretna Green, has been indicted by the grand jury of Cecil county, charged with illegally performing a marriage ceremony on March 18, 1927.

Minutes of meetings of the Wilmington Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church were read to the jurors at yesterday's hearing. These contained testimony which led a jury of clergymen in 1921 to cancel the orders of Mr. Western who was charged with "commercializing the office of marriage."

COAST-TO-COAST RUNNER HERE

John J. Seller, the "Flying Yank," who is attempting to run from coast to coast in 70 days, is stopping in Pittsburgh after completing the first lap of what probably is the longest marathon run in history. Seller says he is 13 hours ahead of his schedule.

He started at Atlantic City September 10 and was given a farewell by "Miss America of 1927." He runs nine hours a day, except Sundays.

Teachers Fall Victims to Cupid

Most of the 46 teachers whose resignations were accepted by the Board of Public Education yesterday left the teaching profession to wed, it has been revealed. Those giving "marriage" as the reason totaled 32, while five had accepted other positions, one quit to attend a university, two were leaving the state and most of the others wanted to travel and study.

FALL FABRIC WEEK and DRESSMAKERS' EXHIBIT

"—And didn't you like that gray tweed? I'm going to make one like that! I'm sure I could—it looked so simple!"

"It was the coats I was noticing. Can you imagine getting a well-tailored coat for so little money? I'm going to remember that dressmaker's name and call her up about it."

Such comments as these, overheard at the first performances of the Fabric Show, lead us to believe that it is accomplishing its purpose. In showing the women of Pittsburgh the beauty of the new fabrics and the smartness of the new patterns, in demonstrating to them the ease of making fashionable clothes for themselves and the economy of having clothes made for them, in giving them all the help we can in planning or executing their fall wardrobes—in all of these ways we are attempting to make of this Fabric Week an event which will have real fashion significance and be of practical benefit to as many people as possible.

Review of Living Models
10:30 A. M. and 2:30 P. M.
AUDITORIUM

About 40 garments, made from Horne's smartest fabrics by Pittsburgh dressmakers (any of whose services are available to the public), displayed in an attractive setting on living models. Style talks by Marguerite McKinley point out the fashion points of each garment and each fabric. Any of these dresses could be copied at home by the woman who knows how to sew.

A free cutting service is being offered this week, and representatives from various pattern companies are here to assist you in the choice of a style which will be individually becoming.

MACKEY LEADING MOORE

VARE RETAINS PHILADELPHIA LEADERSHIP

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 21.—(AP)—The Republican organization under the leadership of Senator-elect William S. Vare apparently was still in control in Philadelphia today despite efforts of independent voters within the party for a new order of things.

Returns from yesterday's primary election from nearly one-half of the 1,317 divisions gave the organization slate a comfortable lead but it was far below pre-election estimates of the leaders.

MACKEY WELL IN LEAD

In the mayoralty contest in which the fight centered, figures from [illegible] divisions showed that Harry A. Mackey, organization candidate, was leading J. Hampton Moore, independent, by 58,174. The vote in these divisions was: Mackey, 116,931 and Moore, 58,757.

Mackey, campaign manager for Vare, whose right to a seat in the United States Senate as a result of alleged excessive campaign expenditures and charges of fraud is under consideration by the Reed Senate Committee, had the undivided support of the city's 48 ward leaders.

Moore, a former congressman and former Mayor of Philadelphia, not only polled a heavier vote in the so-called independent wards than had been expected by organization leaders, but made unexpected inroads in Vare strongholds. The former mayor based his campaign on a declaration against "gang rule." Mackey supporters had predicted his nomination by more than [illegible].

Thomas W. Cunningham, who refused to tell the Reed Senate Committee the source of $50,000 he contributed to the Vare campaign last year, was nominated by the Republicans for sheriff.

70 and 60, Women Join Melody Way Club

From St. Louis, Chicago and Washington have come enrollment blanks from entrants in the Sun-Telegraph Melody Way contest. Pretty good for distance. And now the club has record breakers for age.

Two women, one 70, a resident of Carrick, and another 60, of the East End, sent in their blanks among the thousands to get piano instructions free.

With classes organized and a majority of the Sun-Telegraph Melody Way certificates in the hands of those already enrolled, the system for learning to play the piano has developed rapidly. Many music stores affiliated with the movement have several classes going, and are organizing new ones as the entrants present themselves.

The third of the series of 12 lessons in the Melody Way will be printed in the Saturday Sun-Telegraph. It is not too late. Join now and send in your enrollment blank.

Police in Tears But Not Over Defeat Of Candidate

The North Side police were in tears this morning. But it was not over the defeat of any particular candidate at yesterday's primaries. A tear gas tank, part of the equipment held ready for the suppression of election disturbances, sprung a leak. A patrolman tried to fix it, but only succeeded in opening the valve. All patrolmen and others present hurriedly left the courtroom of the station, and even later today each patrolman was moved to tears if he remained in the room. The tank, still leaking, was parked on an outside window sill.

Don't Like Women in Press Box So Photoplay Critic Requests Jack and Gene for Seat in Ring

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS.
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—I arrived in Chicago yesterday, my former home town. And I want to tell you I almost had to get down on my knees on Broadway to get a reservation on the trains. That is the way New York expects to travel to the Dempsey-Tunney fight.

While New York is not so pro-Dempsey as Hollywood, among the theatrical and motion picture circles the betting is all in favor of Hollywood's Jack. Gene Tunney, of course, has some staunch admirers, but most of his boosters are in circles apart from the theatrical world.

You would be surprised at the business engagements being arranged in movieland so that Chicago is included in the itinerary. Ben Lyon is en route West. Rosetta and Vivian Duncan opened "Topsy and Eva" in Chicago Monday. Lew Cody is coming East on business connected with his vaudeville trip and he and his wife, Mabel Normand, will stop en route in Chicago. Sam Wood has finished Marion Davies' picture and is headed Eastward on a vacation. Tom Gallery and Zasu Pitts have bought ringside seats and so has Dorothy Dwan and Larry Semon.

At a dinner party given by Richard Rowland the other evening, Henry King, who was one of the guests, stated that he would have business in Chicago Thursday. Joseph Schenck also has an engagement to watch the fight. He was a guest at the Rowland dinner. Winfield Sheehan will find it necessary to see how the Fox company is running its business in that town and so on and on.

I have just learned that they do not like women reporters in the press box at prize-fights, so I have decided to ask Mr. Tunney and Mr. Dempsey if I can't be in the ring so I can get a good story on the fight.

While I am on the subject of Henry King, he told me that his first picture under his new contract with United Artists will be "The Darling of the Gods." The selection all came about in a most amusing way. He said to Joseph Schenck:

"Who will direct 'The Darling of the Gods'?"

"Why you," replied Mr. Schenck. David Belasco in selling the play reserves the right to say who shall play the leading role, but as I understand it he has tremendous admiration for Norma Talmadge and there is no doubt that she will be his choice.

Ever so often there is a rumor of a reconciliation between John Gilbert and Leatrice Joy. And this comes now in spite of the fact that John is Greta Garbo's devoted cavalier. My informant says that John Gilbert is a frequent caller at Leatrice Joy's home. If you ever saw Leatrice Joy, the second, you would not blame him for wanting to become acquainted with his daughter. Of course that old and trite expression, "a little child shall lead them," often has its effect.

Mother's Boy gets another job. Who is Mother's Boy? Well, that's a foolish question. He is the wistful-eyed lad, Barry Norton, who played a part in "What Price Glory." This was a small, but unforgetable role. Now he has been given the juvenile lead in "Balaoo," Edmund Lowe's next picture for Fox. Fox believes in keeping all their discoveries in the family.

Movie Organist Is Featured on the Screen

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 21.—Jeannette Loff, until recently an organist in a Portland motion picture theater, will henceforth appear on the screen while some other musician provides the melody. Blue-eyed and blonde, of Danish descent, Miss Loff, who hailed originally from Saskatchewan, Canada, has just been placed under long-term contract by Cecil B. DeMille. Miss Loff recently completed one of the featured roles in the Pathe serial "The Man Without a Face," and is now appearing in "My Friend from India," which features Franklin Pangborn.

ACTRESS IN PITT VERSATILE

Emilie Montrose, who has been seen in the Davis in her own playlet, "Into the Light," in which she impersonated five characters, is playing this week in "Honor Be Damned" in the Pitt. Miss Montrose will also be in "Just Married," the final attraction to be offered by the company, beginning October 3.

Seats for "Golden Dawn," Arthur Hammerstein's music drama, which will have its Metropolitan premiere in the Alvin next Monday night, will be placed on sale tomorrow. Louise Hunter, of the Metropolitan Opera, is featured in "Golden Dawn." The company exceeds 150 in number, and an orchestra of 45 pieces will be directed by the composer, Herbert Stothart.

Pittsburgh playgoers will be the first to see the Broadway cast assembled for "Weather Clear, Track Fast," the new comedy drama by Willard Mack, which will open a week's engagement at the Nixon next Monday evening. Seat sale opens tomorrow.

Appearing in the Keith-Albee vaudeville program in the Davis next week will be Alma Neilson and company. Featured on the screen will be "Dance Magic," with Ben Lyon and Pauline Starke.

Tondeleyo, the dark-skinned vamp in "White Cargo," coming to the Gayety next week, is acted by Christine Cooper. Robert Burns portrays an Englishman whom Tondeleyo is determined to entice.

Harry Clex and Art Mayfield are the principal fun-makers in "Ginger Girls," an Academy booking.

MOLLY O'DAY CAST IN THIRD LEADING ROLE

Molly O'Day plays her third leading role for First National Pictures as the heroine of "The Shepherd of the Hills." Her earlier parts were opposite Richard Barthelmess in "The Patent Leather Kid" and Milton Sills in "Hard Boiled Haggerty."

Longfellow Used Midnight Oil, Films Find

That Longfellow "burned the midnight oil" when he wrote his famous ballad, "The Wreck of the Hesperus," is disclosed by an excerpt from his diary, discovered by DeMille research authorities while preparing for filming the Harry Carr-John Farrow screen version of the poem. Elmer Clifton recently completed the picture as a Pathe-DeMille special.

This excerpt was published originally in Park Benjamin's publication, "The New World." Under date of December 30, 1839, Longfellow wrote: "I wrote last evening a notice of Allston's poems. After which I sat till 12 o'clock by my own fire, smoking, when suddenly it came into my mind to write 'The Ballad of the Schooner Hesperus,' which I accordingly did. Then I went to bed, but could not sleep. New thoughts were running in my mind, and I got up to add them to the ballad. It was three by the clock. I then went to bed and fell asleep, I feeling pleased with the ballad. It hardly cost me an effort. It did not come into my mind by lines, but by stanzas."

Frank Marion and Virginia Bradford, recent DeMille junior "finds," have the featured romantic roles in "The Wreck of the Hesperus," while Alan Hale, Sam DeGrasse and Slim Summerville also have conspicuous portrayals. Among others in the cast are Francis Ford, Ethel Wales, Josephine Norman and James Aldine.

LOUISE HUNTER is to be heard next week in the Alvin, where she will appear in "Golden Dawn."

COLLEEN MOORE, here pictured with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Morrison, furnishes this evidence that players do not just "grow up" even though sometimes they do gain fame over night in coming to notice of the public.

WILLIAM COURTLEIGH comes to the Nixon next week with Joe Laurie, Jr., in "Weather Clear, Track Fast," which one guesses has to do with racing.

Producer Wants Cadets to Name New Film

What's in a name?

"Everything!" say Pathe-DeMille officials, who are in quest of a title for William Boyd's first starring picture, recently filmed at West Point.

Donald Crisp, who directed the picture, thinks the title should come out of West Point—that it should be the spontaneous thought of some officer or cadet within the military academy circles. Accordingly, Pathe-DeMille has offered a prize to the cadet or officer of West Point who suggests the best title for the production. The picture's working title is "The West Pointer," but Crisp is confident a better title will result from the contest just projected.

Bessie Love has the feminine lead in "The West Pointer," as prepared for the screen by Douglas Z. Doty from the original story, "Raw Material," by Majors Alexander Chilton and Robert Glassburn, former West Point instructors.

FAY WRAY GETS LEAD IN GARY COOPER FILM

Fay Wray, young actress who played opposite Emil Jannings in his forthcoming "The Street of Sin," has just been assigned as the feminine lead in Gary Cooper's new war picture, "The Legion of the Condemned." The picture will be a sequel to the air picture, "Wings."

U. S. LAND THROWN OPEN; WAR VETERANS FAVORED

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—Approximately 10,000 acres in Benton county, Spokane land district, Washington, will be thrown open to homestead and desert-land entry beginning October 11, 1927, the Interior Department announced. Honorably discharged veterans of the World War will be given preference in the homestead property for a period of 91 days—subject, however, to valid prior settlement and preference rights. All land left open after the 91-day limit will be eligible for settlement by the general public.

KIDNAPERS SEND BOY, 3, BACK TO PARENTS

DETROIT, Sept. 21.—(AP.)—Little Frankie Jergovich, 3, son of a wealthy Croatian, was restored to his parents last night by kidnapers, who spirited him away from his home Monday.

The abductors, after demanding $25,000 for the child's return, apparently became frightened by police activity and feared to go through with the scheme.

The youngster was let out of an automobile near his home and was found by persons who recognized him from newspaper photographs. Taken to police headquarters, where the parents were summoned, the child said he had not been harmed beyond an occasional spanking when he became insistent in his demands for "mamma and papa."

Frankie told of having been taken from in front of his home Monday evening by two men in an automobile, who drove him to a house where there was a woman. The woman spanked him and put him to bed when he cried for his parents, the child related. He could give only a sketchy description of the kidnapers.

FOUR-YEAR TERM LOST IN N. J.

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 21.—(AP.)—A proposal for election of Governor in presidential years was defeated by upwards of 65,000 votes at yesterday's referendum.

New Jersey has been going Democratic in gubernatorial elections and Republican in presidential years. Republicans advocated a constitutional amendment as a measure of economy, but Democrats maintained the proposal was only a camouflage to strengthen Republican gubernatorial prospects. The gubernatorial term is three years.

YOUNG WOMEN'S CLUB HOLDS PRESIDENT'S DAY

A delightful program, the president's address and a good attendance were some of the ingredients which entered into the making of president's day yesterday for the Young Women's Club. The members and their guests, among whom were visitors from other clubs, gathered in the Wimodausis room of the Congress of Clubs. Mrs. A. K. McMillan, the re-elected president, outlined the club's plans and welcomed the guests, and Mrs. Wilson Scott presented the program, which would have been incomplete without her own contribution of readings, a take-off on an art gallery visit, and then one of those "kid" readings which Mrs. Scott does with such unction. Adam McNaughton's bass-baritone voice pleased his audience in several numbers. His wife, who is a member of the club, played his accompaniments. Miss Nan Laudig, whose piano solos showed a musical comprehension beyond her years, is a high school student. Mrs. D. Allen McCully and her social committee had charge of the tea hour.

Dr. and Mrs. William M. Davidson entertained the membership of the Criterion Club at the club's opening meeting last night. Elmer Kenyon, president of the Pittsburgh Drama League, spoke on "The Present Status of the Drama," and Elmer Stephan, tenor, accompanied by Dr. Carl H. [illegible], sang. The next meeting will be held with Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Buckham, in South Graham street, instead of with Mr. and Mrs. Roy S. Dougall, as announced in the year book.

Mrs. Ambrose Nevin Diehl, vice president of this district of the State Federation; Mrs. R. W. Johnston, vice president-at-large for the state; Mrs. Irwin L. Gillespie, district chairman of juniors, and Mrs. Carl E. Coslowsky, president of the Congress of Clubs, will be honor guests and will speak briefly at the president's day meeting of the Housekeepers' Club tomorrow. Music will be furnished by a trio, Mrs. William O. Grunnagle, soprano; Mrs. Leroy C. Hess, mezzo soprano, and Mrs. A. T. Martin, contralto. They will be accompanied by Mrs. David Marshall. Members of the social committee will serve as hostesses and Mrs. B. D. Scott will be chairman for the day.

MRS CLYDE L. CULBERTSON

The Women's Auxiliary to the Allegheny County Medical Society will give a bridge party December 5 as a benefit for the permanent home of the society. At a meeting of the auxiliary held yesterday in the William Penn Hotel, delegates were elected to the state conference to be held here October 3 to 6. A reception honoring Mrs. William F. McCullough, the president, followed the business meeting. Dr. James H. Hammers of Mayview spoke and music was furnished by Mrs. C. E. Harris, accompanied by Mrs. Elsie Breese Mitchell.

Tuesday, September 27, is the date for the tea which Mrs. Winfield B. Carson, of Stratford avenue, will give for Mrs. Carl E. Coslowsky and Mrs. John S. Sloan, president and past president of the Congress of Clubs.

BOY'S BODY WAS COVERED WITH SEVERE ITCHING RASH

Skin now without a blemish

Ketchum, Me., July 13:—"About seven years ago my nephew developed a severe case of skin trouble which looked like eczema. His face, hands and whole body were covered with the trouble and his skin became raw from scratching. Many soaps and ointments were tried without success before Resinol Soap and Ointment were prescribed and used. The first few applications stopped the itching and soon he was entirely healed. He now has the loveliest skin I ever saw and, thanks to Resinol Soap and Ointment, no unsightly blotches mar the beauty of his complexion."—(Signed) Vivian M. Eagle, Vernon Street.

BLUNT ANSWER WARNS FRANCE ON EMBARGO

By WILLIAM P. FLYTHE,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—The French government has been sharply informed that if it wants a tariff war with the United States it can have it.

This was done in the State Department's note, handed to the French foreign office, which brings to a climax the protest against rates on imports which the French have granted the Germans discriminatory against American goods.

The French were bluntly told that while this government can interpose no objection to import duties imposed by that country, it will insist upon being treated on exactly the same basis as other nations.

As an alternative the French were reminded that the American tariff law makes it necessary to impose a retaliatory duty on French goods of 50 per cent and if necessary declare a complete embargo, if the discriminatory policy is carried into effect by France. The American note quoted freely from the Fordney-McCumber tariff law to show that there is no other course.

It was intimated that while the United States would dislike to do so, it might prove desirable to raise an embargo against luxuries which the French send here and which constitute the bulk of their exports to this country.

Officials of the State Department said that it has been suggested that France might send a commission here to arbitrate the question. It is their belief, however, that there is nothing to arbitrate.

Halitosis easy to prevent

Nothing retards you in business, courtship and society like a real case of halitosis (unpleasant breath). It is a continual offense—and needless, too.

Since you, yourself, can never tell when you have halitosis, the only way to be sure of not offending is to rinse the mouth with Listerine every day—especially before any close personal contact.

1/3 Had Halitosis
80 streetcar conductors, meeting the public at close range every day of the year, said that about one person out of three offends by halitosis. Who should know better than they?
Face to face evidence

So effective, it destroys even the powerful onion odor, Listerine makes short work of milder, but no less unpleasant odors arising in the mouth. It's a good thing to keep a bottle handy in home and office.

Send for our free book of etiquette. Address Lambert Pharmacal Co., Dept. G-5, 2101 Locust Street, St. Louis, Mo.

Identify Agent Who Probed Vice Foe

Harry Steele, mystery investigator of William L. King's record in the West when the vice crusader was exposing crime here, is said to have been identified as Henry J. Lenon, a clerk in the office of District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner. Lenon, it is said, admits making the investigations in the West for Superintendent of Police Peter P. Walsh, and declares he was hired and paid by Walsh while on leave of absence from his regular duties.

Lenon, well known in this district as an investigator of radical activities, is said to be willing to testify before the grand jury. His statement, according to league officials, is already on record. He was identified as Steele by Mrs. King, who had been interviewed by the investigator at her home in Des Moines, Ia.

Following the identification of Lenon, King called District Attorney Gardner and Lenon was called in for an explanation. When he agreed to testify for the commonwealth in the conspiracy case against Walsh, Jakie Klein and "Dopey" Davis, charges made against him in the name of "Steele" were dropped, it is reported.

Lenon, it is said, says he was employed by Walsh and made his reports only to the Superintendent. He also is said to have told that he received his instructions from Walsh alone.

Abraham Weinberg, head of a New York detective agency, who posed as a millionaire gambler during the league's investigation, also will appear against Walsh, it is said, when the grand jury takes up the charges against the Superintendent. The case, with others, was to have been presented today, but Gardner announced that he had granted a request of the prosecution to postpone them until the October term in order to group all of the league's cases at one time.

Raccoon Days Near —Pitt Co-Eds Register

By ALMA SIOUX SCARBERRY.

"School days, school days,
"Dear old hey, hey, hey days!"

They're here again! And Syria Mosque's basement looked like the scene of a bargain sale yesterday. What a mob they were! Registering for Pitt.

And among them, dazzling little flappers who looked about as much as though they were going in for an education as a chorus at a rehearsal. That is, some of them looked that way.

But others! Not a spare hair on their shorn heads—and horn-rimmed specks that looked like balloon tires. The intelligentsia!

Girls with the latest, the very, very latest in everything from two-inch skirts to long hair. And others plain, work-hardened looking as though they didn't give a hang for frills.

There'll be little chance of getting away with much at Pitt this year. For there was a corner set apart for picture taking—"the rogues gallery" the youngsters call it. And every little freshman gets her picture taken and she gets card indexed and labeled and her records blue printed—everything they go into the "Doomsday Book."

"It's positively embarrassing," sighs Miss Co-ed, "I feel as though Scotland Yard were after me."

But Prof. J. G. Quick, in charge, says:

"That isn't the idea at all. We don't want to give that impression. It is just that we want a complete record of our students. We are trying to inject real personality into the pictures this year. Why, when they get out into the world and become famous, these things will be of great value."

It was a revelation—that crowd getting ready for Pitt. For they are characteristic of the thousands that go to make up our co-ed schools all over the country.

However, it is the "types" that one notices. Not the great majority of just plain, plodding, sensible ones thirsting for knowledge and a chance to carve their niche in the hall of fame. And they were much in the majority at Syria Mosque—as they are everywhere.

PITT FRESHMEN "MUGGED" AT REGISTRATION

Getting registered as a freshman at the University of Pittsburgh is somewhat the same as getting arrested, agrees Miss Dora Malkoff, 258 Dinwiddie street, shown above during "mugging"—collegiate campus expression borrowed from the Bertillon room—at annual registration. The University in the "Doomsday" book keeps complete records of all students, even to photographs.

Boy Is Arraigned On Murder Charge

His father in the West Penn Hospital with a stab wound near the heart, Joseph Jance, 21, of 316 Harmer street, was arraigned at the Penn Avenue Police Station this morning on a charge of murder in connection with the death of Frank (Rover) Rowinski, 24, son of the alleged stabber of the elder Jance. Rowinski died yesterday afternoon as the result of a broken neck, said to have been inflicted by young Jance in a fist fight.

The tragedy came as a result of an argument over religion, it is said. August Jance, 55, father of the alleged slayer and six other children, three of whom are living away from home, is the owner of an 11-family tenement at the Harmer street address. The Rowinski family has lived in the house intermittently for the past 18 years.

On Monday night, the elder Jance invited Joseph Rowinski, 66, Frank's father, to his apartment to meet an old friend. The three men, enjoying a reunion, indulged in several drinks, it is said, and Jance and his companion started to chide Rowinski on religious matters.

"You are in league with the devil, Joe," Jance is said to have told his tenant, whereupon Rowinski became enraged and picked up an iron poker and attacked Jance. Jance suffered a serious wound under the arm, the point narrowly missing his heart. Rowinski was arrested and was held over pending the outcome of Jance's injuries at a hearing yesterday before Magistrate Orie.

Rowinski's son, embittered by his father's arrest, took up his father's fight and set out with three companions yesterday afternoon to seek revenge upon young Jance. The four gave young Jance a terrific beating, according to neighbors, who called the police. Before the arrival of the officers, Rowinski and his companions fled and Jance went home.

A Car Passed in the Night And Sally's Heart Beat Faster; Ted Wondered

What Has Gone Before

SALLY JEROME, pretty and clever, is the prop of her family in the absence of her father, who has not lived with her mother for years. MRS. JEROME enjoys poor health, so Sally does the housework mornings and office work for MR. PEEVEY afternoons. The twins, BEAU and MILLIE, give little towards the support of the home, and so the load falls on Sally. In the flat below the Jeromes lives TED SLOAN, an automobile salesman, who want Sally to marry him and keep on working. But the only man who interests her is JOHN NYE, whose office is across the hall from Mr. Peevey's. Millie is Nye's secretary and he blindly adores her. Millie likes him and intends to marry his money if she can, but she really prefers a bond salesman named DAVY DAVIDSON. As luck will have it, Davidson is in love with Sally, whom he scarcely knows. John Nye offers Sally, who worked for him during an illness of Millie, a job; but she decides to refuse it and go into business with her spinster aunt, EMILY JEROME. Aunt Emily has turned her country house into a wayside inn, serving chicken dinners, and installing a big phonograph for dancing. One night she sends for Ted, intending to buy a little car from him. Sally goes with him for dinner and a dance. Sally shows Ted a "Black Bottom shimmy" on the dance floor, and when one of the man guests applauds her, rushes, embarrassed, to the kitchen.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"SHAKING my shoulders," the girl replied after a minute or so. "Ted was showing me a new dance, and I started to shimmy for him . . . He hates me to."

She looked up suddenly, her eyes dancing with fun and mischief.

"I know how to do it, though, don't I?" she asked with the winsomeness of a child that knows it has done a wicked but funny thing. "I can shake, rattle and roll to beat anything, can't I? It's my only accomplishment, Aunt Em!"

She shook her lovely shoulders again, and the movement was as delicately lovely as the flutter of a bird's wings as it coasts along the sky.

Aunt Emily stared at her with eyes that seemed to be popping from her head. Could this be her niece, the calm and sensible and dependable Sally? This bright-eyed, innocent-looking young thing who talked about "shaking, rattling and rolling," as she might have talked about sleeping, breathing and eating, who actually knew that vulgar dance—the "shimmy."

"Well, never let me see you doing anything like that again in MY house!" she snapped, starting away again with her platter.

She had no inkling at that time of how soon she would have to eat her words.

Ted was very cheerful and talkative on the way home that night under the autumn moon. He had just sold Aunt Emily a car—or at least he had her promise to take one from him—and the deal had set him up wonderfully.

"I've been doing awfully well lately," he said, throwing an arm carelessly along the back of Sally's seat in his swift-running little "Cheapsides."

Sally sat up straight. She knew that there was nothing careless about that arm. She had ridden with Ted so many times that she knew just what his technique was:

First he would put his arm along the back of the seat, as if by accident.

Then he would let his fingers just flick her shoulders. Then they would tighten there, and presently he would be trying to draw her close to him so that he could kiss her.

It had happened that way a hundred times, and the outcome had always been the same. Sally simply would not let him make love to her.

Tonight she began to sing to herself as if he were not in the car at all: "Bend way down and shuffle around, and—"

"I wish you'd stop that fool noise and listen to me," Ted cut in, angrily. "I'm trying to ask you to marry me, Sally. I'm beginning to make a lot of money, and I could—"

"Oh, don't lose your head because Aunt Em bought a car from you just now," Sally interrupted, breezily but sensibly. "'One swallow doesn't make a summer,' you know, old boy. And besides, this isn't my year for getting married. Something tells me that!" She laughed. She felt light-hearted and care-free. The music and the brightness she had just left behind her had done that to her, as music and a good time very often did.

"What is your year for getting married?" Ted asked, stolidly.

"Nineteen hundred and ninety-nine, your poor crack-pot," answered Sally. "Didn't you know that?"

Ted groaned. "I don't like you when you're like this, Sally," he told her helplessly. "I wish you'd talk sense to me tonight. Won't you?"

She shook her head.

And then, all at once, she made a queer little strangled noise in her throat. It was rather like the chirping sound that a little bird makes when it is frightened.

"What's wrong?" Ted asked, startled. He leaned forward to look at her with straining eyes, and so he did not see the brown open car that had just flashed past them like some swift dragon of the night.

"Nothing," Sally answered, without knowing what she was saying. Her eyes were ahead of her on the dark road where the brown car was nothing but a red point of light, vanishing into the shadows already.

But her mind's eye still held the [illegible] sitting close together on the front seat, as she had seen them a moment before—John Nye and Millie, on their way home from an evening's pleasure.

She sat back against the seat of the car, limply, with her hands, palms upward, in her lap. Her whole body drooped dejectedly.

Her spirits, that had been as sparkling and light as a skyrocket, dropped like the bare, ugly stick when the sparkle is all gone. She came down to earth, as she told herself, with a bang.

On the last Saturday afternoon in October, Sally stood alone in the center of Mr. Peevey's office, looking at it for the last time.

It was quite bare. The chairs and desks were gone, the funny old red calico seat cushions were gone, the electric stove and the tin of health wafers were gone.

Mr. Peevey, himself, had gone a moment before. And Sally, in her shabby felt hat and her blue serge suit, was all ready to go.

She turned and stared at the door that led into the hall, trying to make up her mind whether to run into John Nye's office to say "goodby" to him or not.

"I ought to, to be polite," she said to herself. "But I hate to do it, somehow."

While she was still debating the

Sally's heart gave a jump and [illegible] ice, as it always did [illegible] she laid eyes on him. [illegible] ll the months she had know[illegible] n, it never had learned to take him calmly—that foolish steadfast heart of Sally's.

"Well, so you're leaving!" he said in his friendly way, leaning against the wall just inside the door and smiling at her. "And you absolutely refuse to come and work for me?"

Sally nodded, unable to speak. A smile was fairly frozen on her lips. She was dreadfully afraid that if she stopped smiling she was going to cry. She could feel her lower lip quiver, and the lump in her throat growing bigger with every passing second.

"Well, I wish you'd change your mind," John Nye's deep voice said, and his face was serious suddenly. "I really need you over there." He jerked his dark, handsome head in the direction of his own office.

"You did better work for me, during the time your sister was in the hospital, than anybody ever did for me," he went on. "I didn't know how much I missed you until you stopped. I got so used to having my letters written perfectly, my desk in order, my pencils sharpened, and a sandwich slipped under my nose whenever I couldn't get out for lunch. I miss talking to you, too."

That was all probably true, Sally reflected, confusedly. . . . Millie was beautiful. But she had very little to say for herself, and she certainly knew nothing about keeping a place tidy.

"But I'm not going to work for John Nye, anyway," she told herself, fiercely. "I'm not going to be his office hack—his human typewriter—while Millie's his sweetheart."

And, of course, Millie always would be his sweetheart—until she was his wife. So that was that in a nut shell!

Sally shook her head stubbornly. "I—won't work—for you," she managed to say, and to speak was a tremendous effort. She felt as if every word were a leaden weight that she dragged from the very bottom of her heart.

She did not see John Nye again [illegible] nth.

[illegible] nd slim in pure [illegible] as sitting at one [illegible] ly's tiny tables, mending a [illegible] hole in the tablecloth she had just laid there.

It was 10 o'clock on New Year's Eve, and she had been working for Aunt Emily for four weeks.

It is hard to get a table in most restaurants in this country on New Year's Eve. Almost every place that serves food and provides music is packed to the doors on that most festive night of all the year.

But Aunt Emily's "House by the Side of the Road" was barely half full, and neither Aunt Emily nor Sally could figure out any reason for it.

Their food was delicious, and the loud-toned phonograph kept the rooms filled with the latest dance music. The dining room was not so large that it looked bare and dreary, even when there were few people in it. But, somehow, the place had just not "caught on" with the public. And Aunt Emily, who had put the savings of a lifetime into it, was heartsick.

When she was heartsick and unhappy, she betrayed it by gruffness and bad temper.

So for a month Sally's life there had not been particularly happy, and her lips were drawn down at the corners as she stitched busily at the cigaret hole in the tablecloth.

"Happy New Year!" a bright voice said, close beside her, and she glanced up to see Millie standing beside the little table.

She had on a large black felt hat and a coat trimmed with black, fluffy fox, and against her somber clothes, her blondeness was startlingly lovely. The cold air outside had brought new brilliance to her eyes and genuine color into her smooth cheeks.

She looked around her at the half-empty room.

"You haven't much of a crowd," she said, in her light, fluting voice. "We thought you wouldn't have. You never do. That's why we came out here. We wanted to be to ourselves, you know."

"Who's 'we'?" asked Sally. "You and Mr. Nye?"

This was going to be pleasant, she thought. To watch John Nye and Millie make love to each other all evening long! And particularly on a night like New Year's Eve, when people went more or less wild and did most of the things they wanted to do—in public.

Millie was shaking her head languorously as she did all things.

"No, it's not Johnny tonight," she drawled, smiling down at her sister through her thick fringe of blackened eyelashes. "He's gone out of town for the holidays with his people. . . . It's Davy Davidson tonight. He's parking his car outside. Now, give us a nice table—one that's off by itself."

She half opened her hand bag and showed Sally the top of a silver whisky flask that was in it.

"Jamaica rum," she said, with a wink of one sea-blue eye.

SAYINGS OF MRS. SOLOMON

PROVERBS FOR THE FOOLISH DAMSEL

MY DAUGHTER, wit attracteth the ear and Titian hair catcheth the eye.

But a woman who can smile and look INSCRUTABLE taketh hold on the imagination, and is insidious, like rare wine.

When other women pursue a man, be not tempted, but stand discreetly aside.

For when he seeketh to dodge them, he shall peradventure flee unto THINE arms for safety and consolation.

HELEN ROWLAND

I charge thee, cease from yearning for a man who understandeth thee. For when a man hath learned to understand women, they are all as last year's magazines. And he continueth to seek for one who is too subtle for him.

Seek not to bind a man with vows and promises, oh Foolish One!

For a promise turneth a privilege into a duty and transformeth a caress from a thrilling novelty into a daily necessity.

Scorn not the choice of thy girl friend, in the husband-market, saying, "What could she SEE in him?"

For, lo, when thou art dazzled by the moonlight in his eyes, thou shalt see beauty in the smile of ANY man, and perceive brilliance in his words. Yea, under the kindly radiance of the love-light, almost anything in tweeds looketh like a Prince Charming.

Verily, in the daily communion of matrimony, a cheerful disposition is more to be desired than a cleft chin and a curling forelock, and a sense of humor more comforting than a New England conscience.

Think not to KNOW a man before marriage.

For how shalt thou know ANY man, until thou hast shared his breakfast, his newspaper, his troubles and his income; until thou hast soothed his headaches and his grouches; applied the salve to his sunburned shoulders, and beheld him when he slept with his mouth open and his Adam's apple was bared and shining?

Sigh not after a heart-collector made in the image of a moving-picture actor.

For a practiced lover may be thrilling in the days of courtship and petting; but after marriage, he shall peradventure KEEP UP his practice. And an artist at any work must ever find NEW inspiration for his "ART."

But a plain-faced youth with a paying job and a flivver is not to be despised because he lacketh a classic profile and a fancy "line."

Verily, verily, she that heedeth my wisdom shall find the short-cut to happiness; but she that saith "Ha-ha!" shall follow many detours, and her way shall be beset with pitfalls.

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

Mary Harrison Sees New Hope for Her Future on the Stage

"BUT, Mary," I said slowly, nonplussed by the vehemence of Dicky's young niece in declaring that if Philip Veritzen sent her away, she would not attempt to continue her dramatic career in any other organization, "what are your plans?"

"I haven't any," she said, drearily. "I suppose I'll go back to Detroit, to Aunt Harriet, unless she won't have me after I tell her about that masked dancer business—"

"Do you know your aunt so little as that, Mary?" I asked her reproachfully, and indeed, the child was doing Dicky's stately sister an injustice. Rigid in standards, dignified in demeanor she might be, but I knew that she carried a very tender, loving heart beneath her rather frigid manner, and that neither her sense of duty nor her inclination would permit her to turn away the girl she loved so nearly. But I also knew that Mary would spend a most uncomfortable hour when she revealed to Harriet Braithwaite the reason for her leaving Philip Veritzen's organization.

"That isn't fair to Aunt Harriete," Mary admitted, "but I'm scared to death to tell her just the same. I've got to though, and—Auntie Madge—" she looked at me wistfully—"I suppose I ought to tell Grandma."

I caught back a smile just in time. Not for worlds would I have the child suspect that I had found even a glint of amusement in the youthful intensity which was impelling her to that futile impulse to wholesale, public and unnecessary confession, which is so apt to seize high-strung, temperamental women.

I had put her into a big chair opposite me when we had come into my room, and at her question I leaned forward and took her twisting hands in mine.

"Look here, Mary," I said in a tone from which I carefully squeezed all sentiment and tenderness, "you're letting this thing rob you of your sense of proportion. Don't get a confession complex. Confession is only for the purpose of righting a wrong or for clearing up future living or working arrangements. Where it does no good, and instead causes pain, I believe it to be as criminal as any other cruelty. Philip Veritzen is your employer, your Aunt Harriet, your guardian. You have deceived them. It is their right to know the truth from your lips. If your Aunt Harriet thinks your Uncle Edwin should know, she will tell him. Leave that to her. But confessing to your grandmother would only give her infinite pain and do no possible good. Say nothing to her."

"But, Auntie Madge," she protested, "I shall feel such a hypocrite every time she looks at me, or praises me."

"That will be your punishment," I said, smiling tenderly at her. "Why take that load off your shoulders, and put humiliation on your grandmother's, who adores you? If you feel that you have failed to live up to her very definite ideal of you, why not spend your energy in attaining that ideal instead of useless repining and giving pain to an old woman by a revelation which can do neither her nor you any possible good?"

She sprang up impetuously and threw her arms around my neck.

"Oh, Auntie Madge!" she cried, "you don't know how plain you've made it for me. I'll do just what you tell me."

"That's very sweet of you, dear," I said, returning her impetuous embrace. "The first thing I'm going to ask you to do is to lie down. You're trembling with nervousness."

"Just let me tell you first what I'm planning to do if Mr. Veritzen turns me out."

"All right. But make it short."

"I'm going to ask Aunt Harriet to send me to a school where they teach cooking and sewing and all the things about managing a home—all the things I've hated most. Then when I get through I can be of some use to her, and repay her for all she's done for me."

1. How did the abbreviation "lb." come to mean "pound"?

2. What is the meaning of the word "ye" in phrases such as "Ye Olde Coffee Shop"?

3. What are the two meanings of the word "Celt"?

4. Where is Mont Blanc?

5. What is the difference between a dromedary and a camel?

6. What are sun-spots?

7. When we "make the welkin ring" what do we mean?

8. By what terms are the horses of a team distinguished?

9. Who wrote "Sentimental Tommy"?

10. Do the planets shine for the same reason that the stars do?

The answers to these questions may be found in tomorrow's paper.

Here are the answers to yesterday's questions.

1. Edwin, one of the greatest of the first Christian kings of England, founded Edinburgh, which takes its name from him.

2. A drowning person does not always rise to the surface three times. The number of times he rises before he finally sinks depends on the strength and swimming ability of the person.

3. "Canada" is a word of Iroquois origin, meaning in the native tongue a collection of Indian dwellings.

4. "The Lady with the Lamp" was the name bestowed on Florence Nightingale by the soldiers whom she nursed during the Crimean War.

5. The correct name for whalebone is baleen. It is found attached to the upper jaw of certain species of whale.

6. Helium, a non-inflammable gas used for filling airships, was discovered in the sun in 1868 by the spectroscope, but was not found on earth until 1895.

7. German silver contains no silver, but is a combination of copper, nickel and zinc.

8. Sapphires are not always blue. They are sometimes red, green, white, violet and yellow.

9. Creole was a term primarily used to denote an inhabitant of the Spanish colonies who was descended from the European settler, as distinguished from the aborigines, the Negroes, and the mulattoes.

10. Miniature comes from the Latin "miniare," to paint with vermilion. The true sense of the word is thus something painted in red. Such paintings were usually small. Hence the later meaning.

Is He Married?

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

IN former days the average girl was carefully guarded. Young men with whom she associated were chosen for her. The old system had one advantage—a girl was fairly certain that her suitor was what he pretended to be, because he had been investigated by her parents.

Today the average young woman chooses her own friends and sweethearts, although in a general way these friends and admirers are subject to the approval of her parents, especially if she lives at home.

"Dear Miss Fairfax," writes J. E. on this subject. "As an interested party to the following proceeding, may I submit it for your kind consideration:

"She met him six months ago through the usual methods. Meetings twice a week were then in order. After four weeks he told her he had been married eight years ago, but had not lived with his wife for the past five years, and had initiated divorce proceedings, which might take a year to materialize. He also revealed that there is a child with its mother and that both are comfortably cared for.

"To relieve her of any conscious guilt she might have through further meetings, he also informed her married brother of the facts.

"Now, the brother's conscience was a burdensome weight, so he in turn confided the facts to other members of the family. As spokesman, he has emphatically forbidden her to see him again until matters are legally clear. He gave her the alternative of him or her family.

"A few facts worth considering are: Their love for each other is flawless.

"He can very well take care of her financially, regardless of other responsibilities.

"She says she will never give him up and will wait for him as long as necessary.

"He is 37. She is 24.

"They both have but one request: To see each other just once a week in the company of any member of her family at any member's house in order to avoid gossip; they do not care to be seen alone, but are open to any suggestions which would put them in proximity about once every week. What is your suggestion?

"J. E."

Before replying to this kindly and logical letter I shall quote from a second, which lies on my desk:

"Dear Miss Fairfax—I met a man in his thirties a few months ago. Since then we have been keeping steady company. I couldn't find out anything about him, for he comes from a different city. We have learned in this short time to love each other very dearly.

"He has just told me that he is married and has a child, but that he doesn't love his wife.

"Although she does not love him she refuses to give him a divorce.

"I love him now too much to give him up. I am so miserable; at times I believe I am going mad.

"Is there any way in which he can get a divorce. He pleads with his wife to divorce him on any grounds whatsoever.

"I did not take him from her. He had not lived with her for years before we met.

"A READER."

Problems of divorce have become so common they cannot be ignored. If you have religious scruples against divorce, there is only one consistent course which will save you from suffering. Avoid the intimate friendship of men who are neither legally separated or divorced from their wives. If you find yourself beginning to care for such a man, handle the situation firmly and forget him by filling your life with new interests.

If you believe in divorce under some circumstances, surely you cannot do better than follow the course pointed out by the writer of the first letter from which I have quoted. Wait until the man who interests you is free before considering him sentimentally or permitting courtship. Needless to say, a girl of honor would not come between a man and his wife.

The married man referred to in each letter was unkind in encouraging a girl to love him before disclosing the fact that he was not legally free to offer her his name.

If time has proved that love is dead, as in the second letter quoted from, there should be every effort made to obtain a speedy divorce. Consultation with a lawyer may point out ways, which vary in various states of the union. Until divorce is an actual fact two persons interested in each other should meet only casually, when carefully chaperoned, out of regard to honor, honesty, regard for the law and the opinions of others, and for the happiness and welfare of all concerned. If divorce proves impossible, the only course is to separate finally and forget each other through work and new interests.

A man who is frank and manly will be frank always from the first regarding his marital status with a girl whose companionship he seeks, protecting her from himself.

When a new acquaintance shows the disposition to cultivate your friendship, ask yourself the question, "Is he married?" Find the correct answer to that question before proceeding with the friendship. Only a friendship that is honest and right from the first can lead to happy, successful romance.

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

Thursday, September 22

Astrologers read this as a particularly unfavorable day in planetary direction and warn that it is well to avoid all financial negotiations.

Again farmers will have cause for complaint, it is foretold, but profit is prognosticated for them and they who are close to the land will benefit eventually.

It is especially dangerous to quarrel at this time, when both men and women are likely to be nerve-racked.

The rule is most menacing to domestic happiness and presages much divorce interest.

In Europe a public man is to be betrayed and assassinated, it is prophesied, and the crime will have far-reaching consequences.

Mars is still in an aspect supposed to be responsible for increase of cases of fever and diphtheria.

Colera is to ravage a foreign nation and to cause great alarm in the United States next summer, if the stars are rightly read.

Newspapers are still subject to a sway that encourages the press to reveal conspiracies and to uncover political plots.

While the national election next year is to stress the danger of change and to tend toward perpetuation of power, it will be attended with extraordinary bitterness, the seers prophesy.

Women are to play a prominent part in public affairs and to gain domination, which promises reforms, it is forecast.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a coming year that is not important. They should be especially careful to avoid litigation.

Children born on this day may be inclined to rule when they have no gift for executive matters. They should be trained to be humble and unselfish.

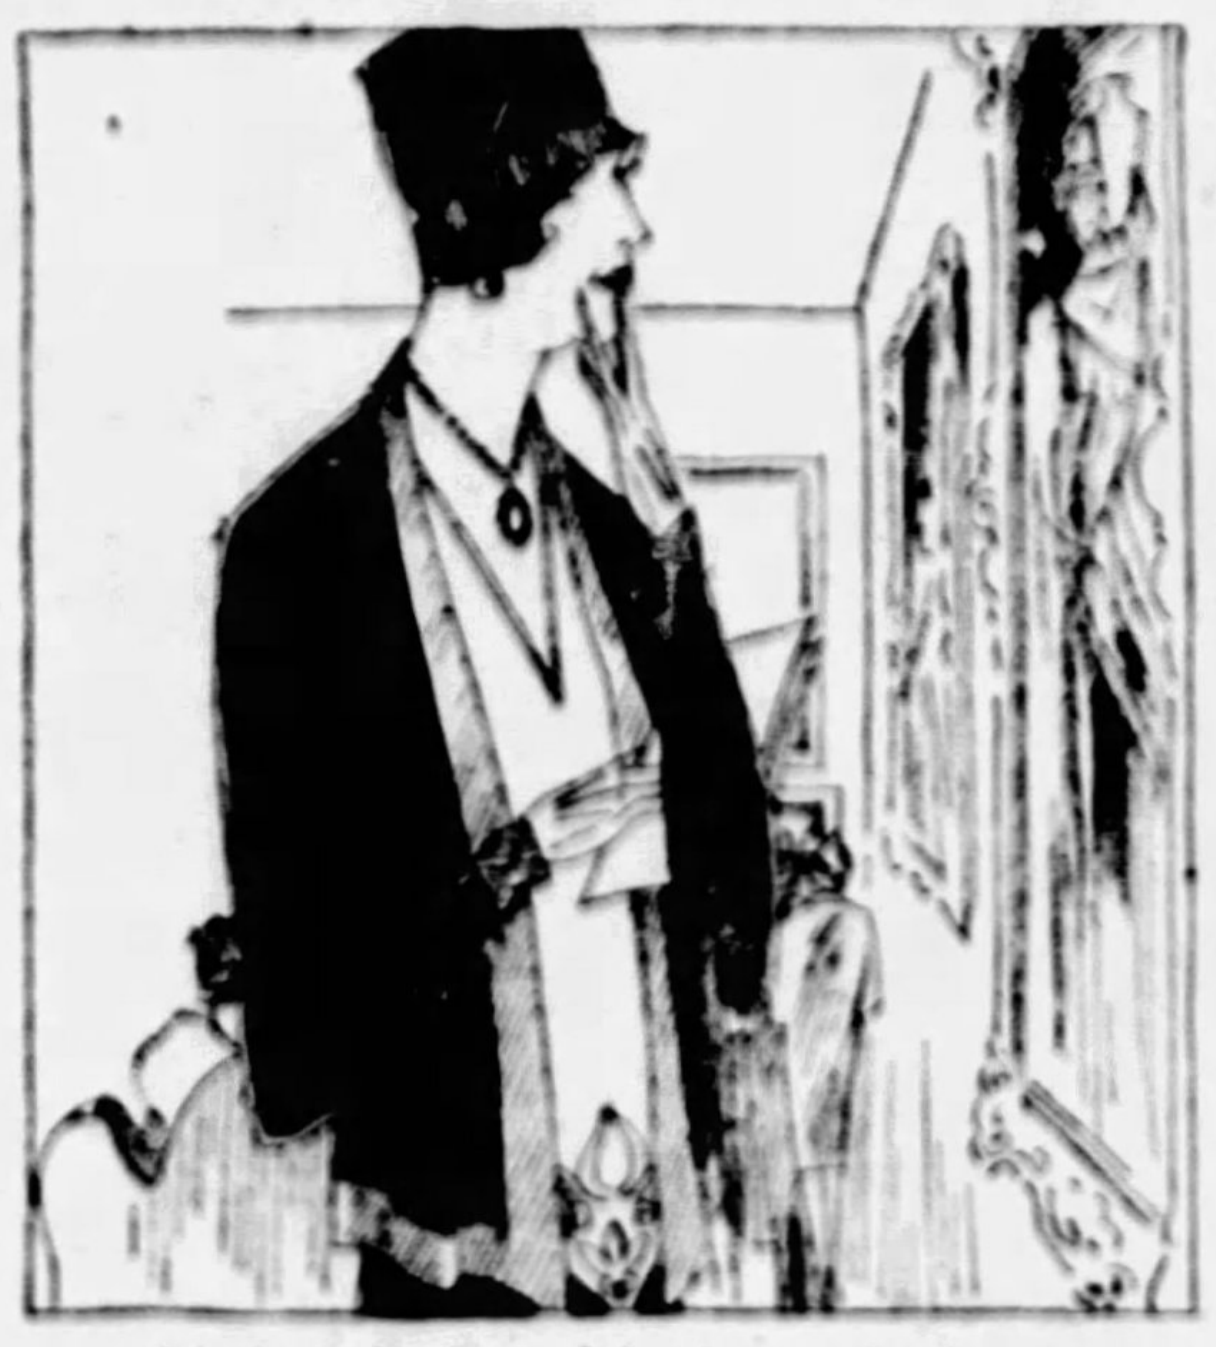
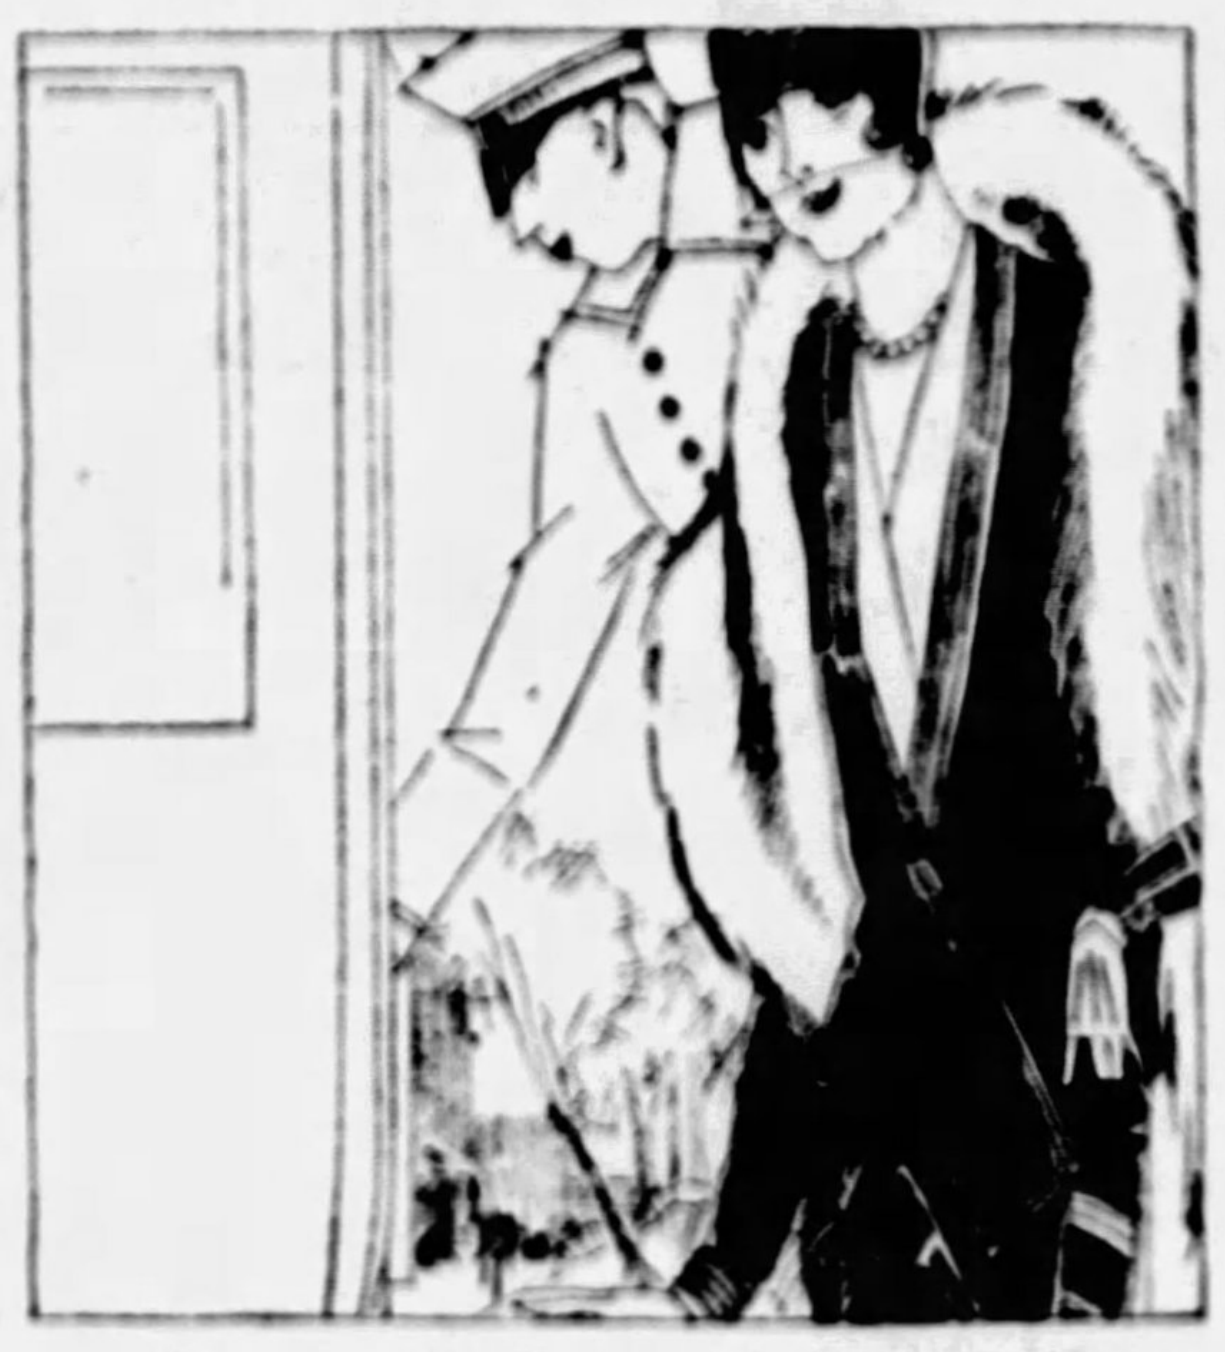
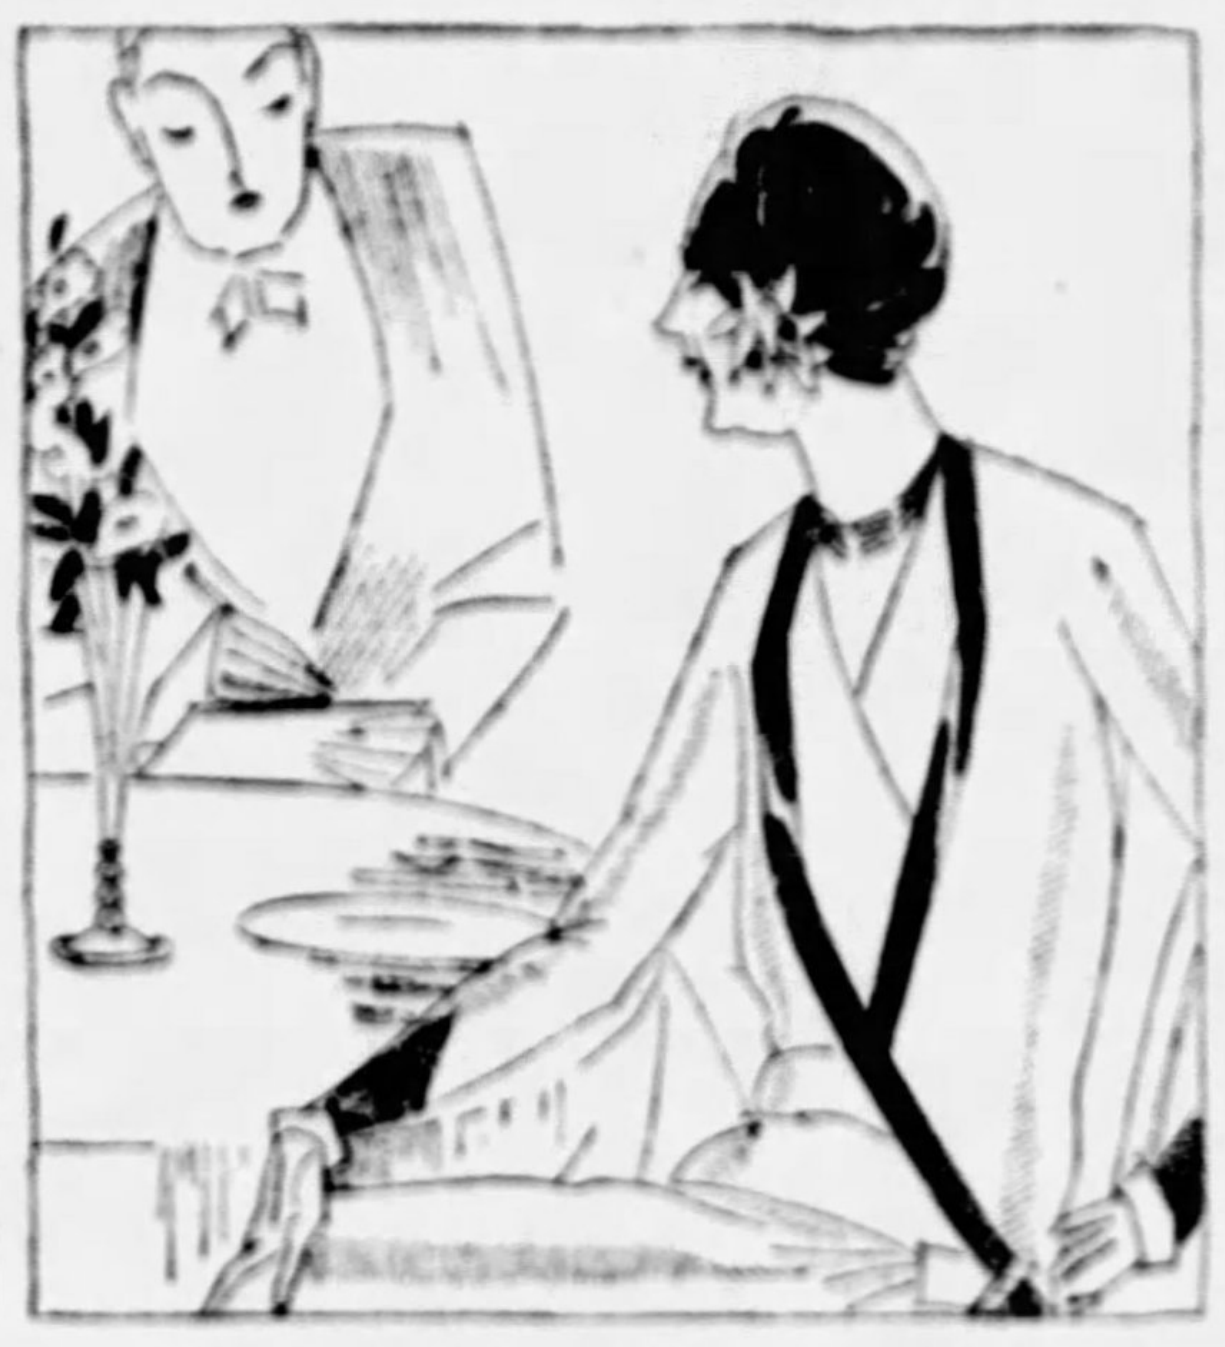
CHIC CHERIE ⁘ Other Times—Other Frocks ⁘ LATEST FASHIONS



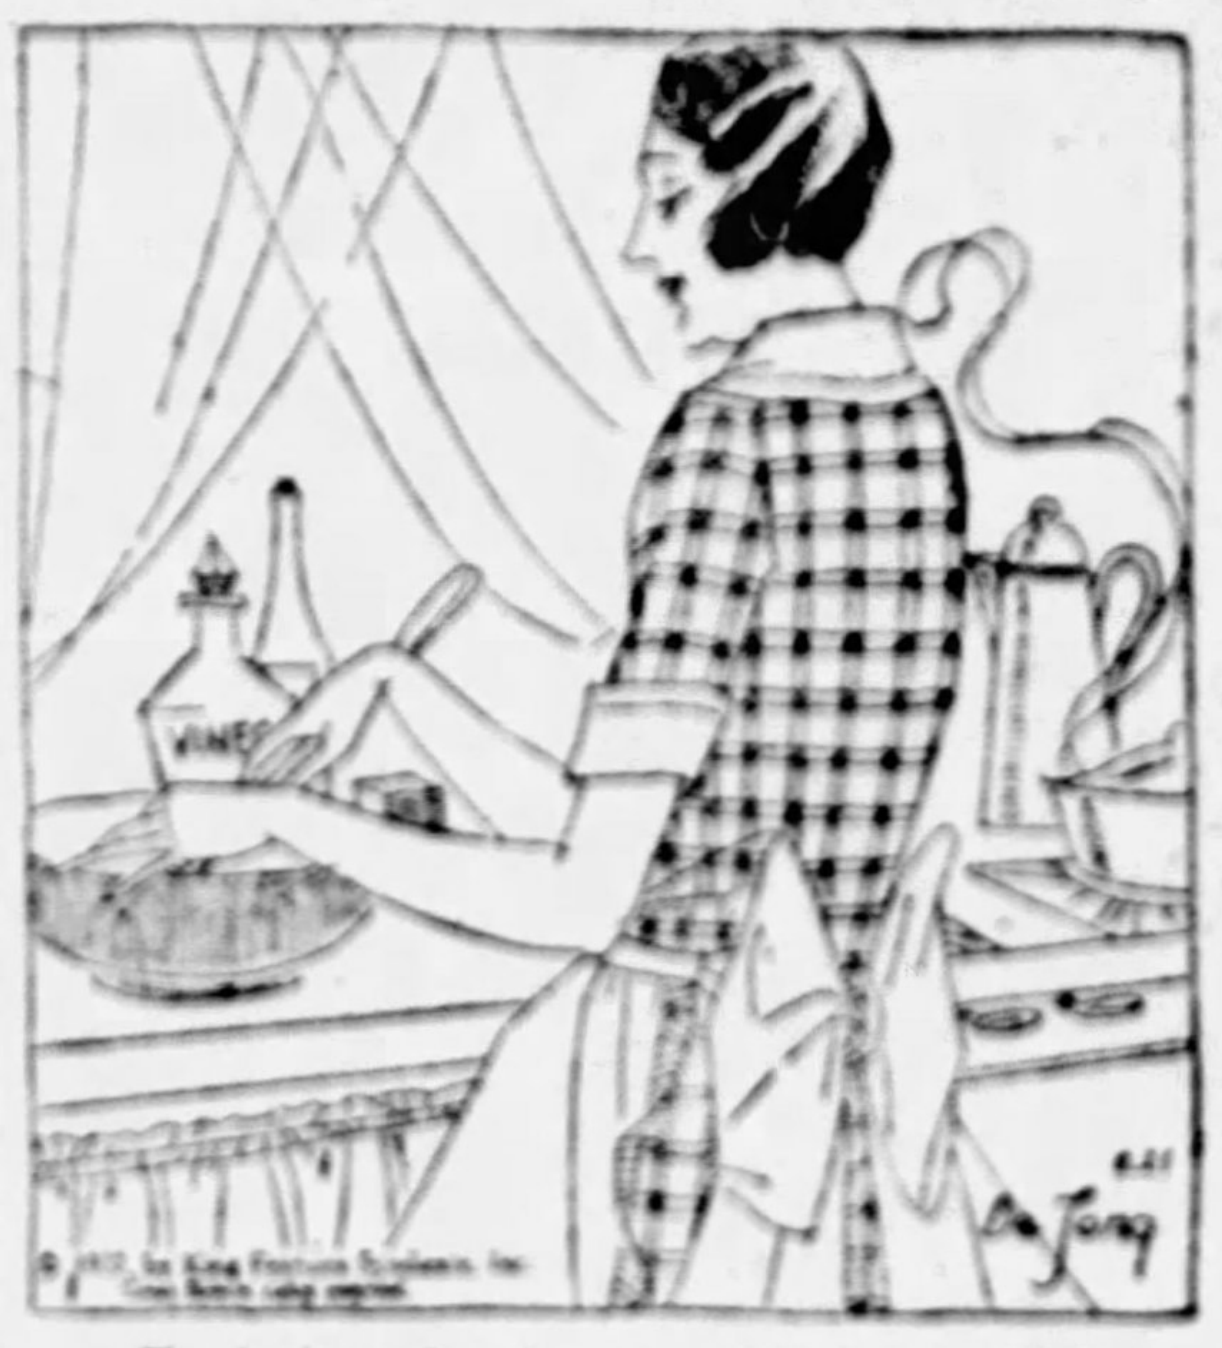
It's just the sort of frock one should wear to a picture gallery, and whether Aunt Em chose the pictures to suit the dress or the dress to suit the pictures doesn't matter. What does matter is that the dress shows a bolero can be worn even by the plump if it's cut long in front and has a pointed vest.



Of course, long lines are slenderizing. That's why Aunt Em's frock has narrow braid to edge the surplus front and to indicate a belt without actually wrapping another fold of cloth around Aunt Em's hips. The dress is tailored navy reps, and what a pity there's no one to notice the tiny nose-veil on her hat!



Almost anything will do for tea—that is, almost anything in the way of food. In the way of clothes one should be more particular. Clothes for tea should be something like this molded turban of velvet drawn down over one ear by a brittle flower and like this crepe frock with a one-sided, onyx-buckled drape.



© 1927, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

She had good references, that last maid, but though she may have thought she knew how to make dumplings she had reckoned without Aunt Em. And with Cherie bringing company home to dinner something must be done. Everything in its place and a checked cotton frock trimmed with fagotting is modishly placed right here.

Reducing Aids

DEAR MISS LEEDS—(1) I am 21 years old, 5 feet 3 inches tall and I weigh 130 pounds. Am I too heavy? My measurements are: Neck, 12½; bust, 33; waist, 26; hips, 34; thigh, 19¼; calf, 13; ankle, 8¼. (2) My legs seem a little too plump; how may I reduce them? I have naturally curly hair, green eyes and a fair skin. What colors may I wear? IRISH.

Answer—(1) You are about eight pounds over the average weight for your age and height. Your measurements are excellent, however. The ankle is a bit thick. Perhaps the scales you used to weigh yourself are not accurate. (2) I think that exercise would be likely to develop rather than reduce your calves, since they are already correctly formed. My leaflet on "Care of the Feet and Legs" gives special exercises for reducing heavy ankles and I shall be glad to mail it to you on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope. (3) You may wear pastel pinks in sheer fabrics, copper-red, henna, very delicate orchid, gray, taupe, almond green, reseda, pale yellowish green, dark blue, turquoise, greenish yellow for evening, bronze, dark brown, deep cream, black. LOIS LEEDS.

Developing a Thin Figure

Dear Miss Leeds—(1) I am very much underweight and should like to gain about 28 pounds. I am 16 years old, 5 feet 6¾ inches tall and weigh 103 pounds. My legs are very thin in proportion to the rest of my figure. My shoulders are slightly rounded, so that my neck is not erect and my back is swayed in. Is this due to a weakened condition from being underweight? Would exercise correct it? My fingers are crooked and the knuckles quite large; would massage help them? (2) Please give me a good bleach for freckles. (3) Is there anything I can do for a dry skin that looks scaly when I powder? (4) I have auburn hair, greenish brown eyes and a fair complexion. What colors become me? What shade of powder should I use? TITIAN.

Answer—(1) You have been growing up fast and that has kept you thin, but from now on you should begin to fill out so that by the time you are about 20 years old you will have a graceful figure. During this growing period a girl needs plenty of nourishing food. Drink an extra quart of milk each day. Sleep nine or ten hours a night. Have plenty of fresh air and moderate exercise, but do not overexert yourself. My leaflet on "How to Gain Weight" gives fattening diets and other helpful suggestions for your type; please send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. As you gain weight your legs will become fatter. You must learn to stand and sit straight. Hold your figure as tall as you can, with chest elevated, neck straight and chin level. Yes, your posture defects are due largely to your lack of normal muscular development. This will be remedied as you become heavier and learn to carry yourself correctly. A good exercise for the weak back is to lie face down on the floor and slowly raise and lower the head and shoulders. The knuckles seem large because your hand is too thin; massage it gently every day to stimulate the circulation. (2) Here is a recipe: Two drams glycerin, 30 grains zinc sulphocarbolate, three drams alcohol, one and one-half ounces orange flower water. (3) Please send for my leaflet on "Care of Dry Complexions." (4) You may wear the same colors that I listed for "Irish" above. Use an ivory powder or a mixture of ivory and flesh.

For the Lovelorn

Lonesome Ann

DEAR MISS GALE:

I have been reading your wonderful advice for the last three years and am now craving for some myself. I am 18 years old. I do not use any make-up except once in a while powder, but by no means am I old-fashioned. I agree with you on the questions of petting, drinking, etc. I have been to some pretty wild parties and know what they are like, but I don't think much of them.

Some time ago a fellow in my neighborhood showed by his actions that he had a liking for me. We didn't live far apart and saw each other quite often evenings. I have known him now two and a half years and he has never spoken to me. When I pass him on the street or home he just smiles at me, but no more. Now since I moved I see him seldom. He is two years my senior and has to help support the family. I think he doesn't speak to me because he isn't his own boss yet and girls cost a lot to be taken out lately. I wouldn't want to go out so much as long as we could be friends. Please, Miss Gale, is there some way in which I could get speaking to him? I do not go out with other fellows much as I have a strong liking for this one. He only goes out with his boy friends, which I found out through his sister, who is a good friend of mine. Do you think he cares for me? I do care for him and always will. Thanking you for your time and space, I am LONESOME ANN.

Why not get better acquainted with this boy through his sister, my dear? Make her your friend and you will have many opportunities to see her brother and make him like you.

K. and H.

DEAR MISS GALE:

No. 2 went out with a boy who drinks, smokes, pets and chews. Now No. 2 never admired a boy with these vices, but yet he has a steady job as a truck driver. She thinks he is a good catch cause he pulls down good pay. Now Miss Gale the only thing that prevents their marriage is that she is afraid he will still continue in these bad habits after they are married although he promises to reform if she will hitch up with him. What should she do?

No. 1 dearly loves a boy who does not live in the city but about 250 miles from here. She only sees him on occasional visits. Other boys call her up for dates but she never has as swell times with them as she does with her other friend. This other boy has asked her to get engaged to him but they could not get married as he has a mother to keep. Neither of them is happy with any one else so don't you think they ought to get engaged and be sure of each other?

We wish you the best luck and hope you will advise us like our mother would if she was here but she is back in the Old Country.

It is an extremely risky business to marry a man who promises to reform. If he means it, he will reform now and prove that he really means it. Under the circumstances I think it better for the other girl and boy to remain free until he is able to marry. They are far apart and would have little fun in life if they were bound by an engagement.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

by Royal S. Copeland, M.D.

U.S. Senator from New York

Abstinence From Food Prescribed for Many Ailments

HOW long can a healthy person live without food? This question I am asked on frequent occasions.

The text-books give 50 days as the longest time possible to fast and live. But Mayor McSwiney, of Ireland, lived 74 days. That is the longest fast on record, so far as I know.

Of course, we are talking about abstinence from food. It would be possible to live but a few days, a week or less, without water.

I am telling you about these prolonged periods of time without food, in order that you may see how foolish it is to think you will suffer by fasting for two or three days. The young mother fears her baby may die if it has nothing to eat for 24 hours.

You will be surprised how little inconvenience is associated with fasting, after the first few hours have passed. The demands of appetite make it difficult to resist food, but when the stomach quits crying for food, as it will very speedily, there is no particular discomfort.

There are some ailments in which going without food is an important feature of the treatment. One such trouble is diarrhea.

The most frequent cause for diarrhea or dysentery is the taking of improper food. Unripe fruit, tainted milk, bad ice cream, infected oysters—any sort of unsuitable food may cause a catarrhal condition of the intestines, with diarrhea as the chief symptom.

Pain in the abdomen, constant or in colicky attacks, is another uncomfortable symptom. Bloating and rumbling are noted. Fever, loss of appetite, headache and prostrations are not uncommon.

What is the first thing to do? Stop eating. Leave off all solid food, certainly, and usually to omit the taking of any sort of food will be better.

For the sickness at the stomach and vomiting, ice held in the mouth will help a lot. Sipping a little milk and soda may relieve. Boil the milk first.

Rest in bed is essential. This, together with the prohibition of food, will be likely to end the misery. And, as I have told you, you need fear no evil results from several days' abstinence from food.

At the same time you are keeping food from the system, it is a good practice to clear out of the bowel everything possible. Injections of water will help.

While we are talking about fasting and moderation in eating, why isn't it a good time to suggest the importance of light meals? A hundred times I have told you that you live on a third of what you eat and the doctors on the other two-thirds! We love the doctors, but good health is better than keeping them busy. Bless their souls, they say so, too!

Our wives and the other cooks know how to make food so attractive that it is difficult to resist its appeal, but it is better for all of us if we go slow at the table.

Answers to Health Queries

P. R. Q.—What will reduce fat legs? Would Epsom salts baths be helpful?

A.—Exercise and massage might help if the legs are large due to surplus fat, but if due to muscle formation, there is nothing that will reduce them. No.

Elinor Glyn Tells the Truth About

Preparedness

I HAVE just read of an astronomer who tells us that the sun may explode any day—tomorrow—or in a million years! And when it does, we shall know it in eight minutes—and after that we shall know that we have 138 hours to live before the asphyxiating gases reach us and extinguish all life on this globe!

ELINOR GLYN

It is very instructive to contemplate what might possibly be our state of mind in this case! Try to imagine what you would feel if this occurred! There would be no use in planning any escape because there would be nowhere to go! The entire life on earth would suffer the same extinction.

What then would be the value of stocks and bonds—gains extracted from weaker and less clever fellow creatures? Of what value jewels or motor cars or airplanes—or social successes? Of what value anything material? You have believed halfheartedly in some God, perhaps, but have not bothered much to shape your life according to what might have been His teachings. You have hardly, indeed, even tried to propitiate Him! Would your thoughts go to Him now or would you just try to sit down and wait respectably for forgetfulness—the End—Nothingness—with what decency you could muster up? Many who believe in a hereafter would be quiet and even joyful—the fight over—but many would be in despair.

It would, therefore, seem wise to try and live as though this sun-combustion might happen in our time, because its prototype for the individual—Death—must come to all of us.

★ SUN-TELEGRAPH ★ SPORTS ★

Dry Agents Invade Chicago

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—(AP.)—Federal prohibition officials are ready to apply the mop to the entire city to guard against saturation on the eve of the Dempsey-Tunney fight, which is attracting thousands of visitors and an expected proportionate amount of liquor. Squads of raiders were assigned last night to pay regular calls at all loop hotels and "beer joints."

THROUGH the SPORT LENS

by HAVEY BOYLE

TONIGHT two long special trains will pull out of Pittsburgh packed with Pittsburgh fans intent on seeing the Tunney-Dempsey fight tomorrow night in Chicago. Over the Pennsylvania Lines John McGarvey, former boxing entrepreneur at Motor Square, will act as guide to more than 125 ring fans. Over the Baltimore and Ohio Joseph Taggart will pilot almost the same number of fans.

Havey Boyle

MY space on the train calls for a very artistic stateroom on an observation platform car, but if the boxing fans live up to tradition there will be very little use for a stateroom or for any of the usual appurtenances designed by a thoughtful man to provide rest on a train. On a special train running to a fight the amount of sleep the average customer gets is almost negligible.

AS the train rolls over the rails there will be much popping off by voices from within conversation ranging from the poetic in the classical manner to less epic-like verbal contortions. Nearly everyone on the train will know who is going to win the fight and nearly everyone will have a different reason. These cross currents of conversation will meet, form great eddies of words and cataracts of volubility to drench the innocent onlookers.

IN fact half of the fun of seeing a big fight is to take in the excursion train ride to the big doings. There would be but little fun simply to board a train, go to sleep, wake up, and attend the fight. That would be like going to a school picnic without the shoe box containing the boiled eggs, the pickled beets, and those other horrors that give such great delight to picnickers. The real kick comes in the train ride, during which the various theories about the impending battle are set forth by the learned professors.

THERE are, of course, reminiscences to cover those gory old days of the bare knuckle events, a gradual leading up to the immortal Sullivan and then step by step down through the pages of modern history to the present day spectacles.

Fortunately, too, the boys who thus strain their vocal chords, and make dry their throats, are well provided with the necessary liquids to meet any emergency. The trains are always equipped with a large tank of refreshing ice water, and those who do not fancy aqua pura, as we used to say at the engine house, are regaled with large draughts of sparkling ginger ale. The water and ginger ale are mentioned so that no one will get the idea that there will be anything unseemly about the long ride to Chicago.

SO FAR little betting has been reported among the excursionists as to the outcome of the fight, although a local brokerage house offered a 2 to 1 bet that before either train was 150 miles out of Pittsburgh there would be no less than seven improvised quartets singing: "Sweet Adeline."

A VERY large portion of the excursionists, of course, will lock themselves in their staterooms and retire with great decorum. In fact, Mr. Joseph Shevalin, lovable and gray-haired chief of the Broughton volunteer fire department, insisted that a guarantee be given that if he went on the train he would be assured a good night's sleep. The necessary guarantee was made Chief Shevalin, who, forced to answer many a midnight alarm around the environs of Broughton, Curry and other points, naturally wants a little peace and quiet on his jaunt away from home.

MR. TAGGART, in charge of the Baltimore and Ohio train, plans to annoy as many of his friends as possible with a few rubbers of bridge. In his youthful railroading days Mr. Taggart regaled himself with many an hour of harmless poker, but since then he has taken up bridge in a serious way, and he can quote Work and Whitehead, noted authorities, as the young advocate quotes Blackstone or refers to the sayings of John Marshall.

YOUNG John Harris, theatrical man, accompanied by Denny and Frank, has chartered a special car to carry a party of friends to the big doings. And last but not least is our handsome mayor, Charles H. Kline, with a group of friends in public and quasi-public life, who will attend.

The South Side will be ably represented by Daniel Winters, president of City Council; Oakland's delegation will be headed by Senator James Coyne, and there is a substantial rumor that Mr. Edward Edwards, who wears on occasion a pearl gray derby and a flowing white silk necktie, will enter into negotiations with Mr. Rickard concerning the best way to get a very good seat—well, er, hmm, hmm, at a reasonable figure.

MR. EDWARDS at the last heavyweight championship affair held a post of honor since he was delegated to act as usher. While never having had much experience as an usher, Mr. Edwards proved an apt pupil and before the night was well under way he was quite close to the ring showing the customers how to get to their seats. Mr. Edwards, always public-spirited, deemed it right and proper that greater care should be taken of the higher priced customers than the boys in the trenches, so to speak. So, while he was assigned to the $5.00 section, he, with great vision, saw his duty clearly, so he left the $5.00 section to move up front to handle the more expensive customers.

Pitt, Tartans, Dukes Drill

By JESS M. CARVER.

THE apple of discord, rumored to have been tossed into the football works at Geneva College by person or persons unknown, was dubbed a pipe dream, a myth or what have you by Graduate Manager of Athletics A. C. Edgecomb this morning.

The rumored discord had to do with Col. Alvin (Bo) McMillin, head coach at Geneva. It was reported that Col. Bo was not on the best of terms with some of the powers that be, and that he was not to be tendered a new contract when his present one runs out, which it does at the close of the present season.

"Verily, it's all a lot of bunk," said Mr. Edgecomb. "We are perfectly satisfied with Col. McMillin and he seems to be satisfied with Geneva. We are planning to offer the colonel a new contract right after football season, and we hope he accepts it."

Thusly disposing of the rumor, one of those well known idle ones, Mr. Edgecomb went on to state that the Covenanter team was in fine trim, and that the veteran aggregation of brawn and brain will most assuredly take the "burrs" out of the famed Scarlet Hurricane of Davis-Elkins Saturday afternoon in the lid-lifter.

Despite the assurances of Mr. Edgecomb that the Covenanters will knock the tar out of Davis-Elkins, it might be well to remember that Davis-Elkins also has a great team and a veteran one, one that campaigned with the Navy and New York University last year, and campaigned well. Geneva's work will be well cut out Saturday.

Coach Elmer Layden of Duquesne refused to give out any hint as to the makeup of the squad that will trek to Olean, N. Y., Friday when the Dukes will open the season Saturday with St. Bonaventure.

Layden and his able assistant, Johnny Weibel, have eased up a trifle on the work they have been giving the Dukes, and today will start putting on the finishing touches. The squad is near the top of physical condition at present.

The team will entrain early Friday morning for Olean, thus giving the players a chance to get a good night of rest before the contest.

It's going to be strange, interesting is probably a better word, to see a Pitt team playing a wide-open style of football, with a lot of aerial work and wide end runs and trick plays.

That is the way the Panthers are going to look this year, according to all the dope one can lay hands on. It seems that Coach Jock Sutherland has been paying special attention to his forward passing, and that he will throw more passes at Tommy Holleran in the opener with Thiel Saturday than Tommy ever saw before.

However, with line crackers of the ability of Booth and Parkinson, still tied up in the throes of their fight for the varsity fullback berth, the Panthers are going to be dangerous as a line smashing team, and with Welch to rove the ends and off the tackles, they'll make their opponents keep awake all the time. And how!

Carnegie Tech anticipates but little trouble in the game Saturday at Youngstown with Westminster. Tech's eleven, the first stringers, have come along in fine fashion, haven't been handicapped with a lot of injuries and on the whole will present a powerful front against the United Presbyterians.

PEEWEE WANER TIES RECORD

Lloyd Waner, sensational young Pirate outfielder, equaled the modern major league record for singles in one season, and set another in the number of safeties by a first-year man, in the past week, unofficial records show.

He gathered his one hundred and seventy-ninth single from the Brooklyn Dodgers yesterday, tying the modern record set by Johnny Tobin, of the St. Louis Browns, in 1921. The all-time record, however, is 129, set by Willie Keeler in 1897.

Waner, serving his first year in the major leagues, several days ago reached the 200 mark in total hits, a feat never before achieved by a first-year man, so far as available records show.

ILLINOIS GIVES FIGHTER OUT OF RING 20 SECONDS

CHICAGO, Sept. 21—(U.S.)—Under the rules of Illinois Athletic Commission a man if knocked out of the ring has 20 seconds, instead of the usual 10 seconds, to return. The timekeeper's count is the official toll. The timekeeper for the Tunney-Dempsey fight, it was indicated today, probably will be Paul Beeler. He has kept time at every championship fight in Illinois under the new regulations, which came into force July 3, 1926. The Illinois timekeepers do not strike the knockdown seconds with a mallet. They call the seconds. The timekeepers in Illinois voice a count irrespective of whether or not a foul is committed. It is up to the referee to stop the count if he considers the knockdown the result of a foul.

1929 National Amateur May Go to Del Monte

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 21.—(AP.)—The San Francisco Call says it has authoritative information that the United States Golf Association has virtually decided to hold the 1929 national amateur championship at the Pebble Beach course, Del Monte, Cal. Definite announcement of the selection, it is said, will be made at the annual meeting of the national body in New York in November.

HAGEN TO BUY INTEREST IN ROCHESTER CLUB, SAID

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 21—(AP.)—The Toronto Globe says Walter Hagen, noted golfer, has told friends he will shortly become part owner of the Rochester baseball club of the International League. John Ganzel, long interested in the league, will be associated with Hagen in ownership of the club, the newspaper says.

BILLIARD RECORD BROKEN

NEW YORK, Sept. 21—(INS.)—Eric Hagenlacher, leading Willie Hoppe by 1,200 to 1,041 today in an exhibition 18.2 billiards match here, broke the world's high-run record by clicking off 412 points. The record run was uncompleted when play ended and may be increased today.

ANSWER TO QUERY

Gene Tunney fought Harry Greb five times. Won in 15 rounds twice in 1923, fought two 10-round no-decision bouts in 1924 and 1925 and lost 15-round bout in 1922.

BRUINS RETAIN M'CARTHY

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—(AP.)—Joe McCarthy will boss the Chicago Cubs for the next three years. He signed a contract covering 1928, 1929 and 1930 yesterday.

William Veeck, president of the club, said that McCarthy would have complete co-operation in the strengthening of the team.

Flynn to Be Dempsey's Chief Second

By LEO P. FLYNN,
Manager of Jack Dempsey.

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—Imagine the second who advised the greatest left-handed hitter of the age to wrap that punch around his neck and try to nail his opponent with a right.

That is one of the misfortunes that overtook Jack Dempsey at the Tunney fight last year. There were three others and none of them will be repeated Thursday night when Tunney again will be asked to prove that he belongs in the same ring with my great mauler.

The remaining three factors that, in my opinion, contributed most to Dempsey's defeat last year were:

1. He received no assistance from his corner between rounds.

2. Mental disturbances brought on by lawsuits and countless other annoyances.

3. The surreptitious administration of an emetic that weakened him, as Tunney would express it.

Taking these matters in their order, I first will treat on the subject of proper handling in the corner before and during the fight. It is without the slightest conceit that the promise is made that I, personally, will guarantee that Dempsey will get every assistance from his corner on Thursday night.

It is not conceit for me to say that I know how a fighter should be handled in his corner. If I don't know how to do that, I don't know anything, for I have spent most of my life in the corner of some fighter or another. On Thursday night, I not only will be Dempsey's manager, but his chief second and my pledge to all Dempsey followers, who are legion, is that Dempsey's fight this time will be aided and not hindered by the attention and advice he will get between rounds. So much for that.

Now for the irritations, the interruptions, the almost unbearable chain of misfortunes that beset Dempsey from the moment he began training last year. There is none of these in evidence now. We are just a happy family out at the race track and Jack is the happiest of all. He knows he is in for a hard fight; he expects it. He even welcomes it. And with the crisis coming on, no man in my experience ever has been so serene as Jack Dempsey is today.

I know that Dempsey was poisoned at Philadelphia. How, I cannot say. All I know is that it did happen and it was one of the big reasons why Gene Tunney became the champion of the world.

itself, but talk of intrigue. If one were to place all the rumors and scandal end to end, he would have enough to blanket the area of Soldiers' Field, where the bout will be staged, several times and still have enough left to write home about.

Naturally most of these rumors have to do with the fight being in what is classically known as the burlap, otherwise, the sack or bag or satchel. Such rumors precede all big bouts, but never were there as many as on this occasion, nor did they emanate from more "reliable sources."

If a betting man were to listen to all of them and then try to lay his wagers accordingly he would wind up by betting that the moon shines in the daytime. Each rumor contradicts that which precedes it, and so on, and so on, ad infinitum.

The boys in the know, or who think they are, were at their best at the big blowout tendered the visiting scribes and the usual gate-crashers at the Morrison Hotel Monday night. Everybody had some information to impart that was the real stuff. And only a bootlegger could be more enthusiastic in praising his brand of goods.

For instance, I spoke with one man from New York whom I had met at Dempsey's camp at White Sulphur Springs before the former champion's recent battle with Jack Sharkey in New York.

This gentleman, whose name I decline to give for obvious reasons, nearly got himself run off the Dempsey reservation on that occasion by telling everybody Dempsey was a decrepit old geezer who didn't have a chance with the Boston gob and offering to bet heavy money with all and sundry to that effect. I ran into him again at the banquet and began to commiserate with him on his losses, only to be told that he had cleaned up on the Sharkey fight.

How had it happened? Hadn't I heard? He had switched and hedged on receipt of private information that Dempsey could not lose and was one of the fellows who poured out Dempsey money in huge gobs and sent the Manassa Mauler into the ring an 11-10 favorite.

"I was told," this gentleman informed me, "that Dempsey could not lose—even if he had to foul

ADA MACKENZIE LEADS PAYSON

GARDEN CITY, N. Y., Sept. 21.—(AP.)—Miss Ada MacKenzie, Canadian champion, led Miss Helen Payson, of Portland, Maine, by 2 up when they reached the turn in the second round of the national women's golf championship tournament today. The Toronto girl drew away when Miss Payson picked up her ball on the eighth and took a six on the ninth, while Miss MacKenzie was shooting fives.

Mrs. Henry Pressler, Western champion, who yesterday eliminated Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, former National titleholder, was 2 down to Mrs. Courtland Smith, Glenridge, N. J., after four holes.

The match that drew the largest gallery was between Mrs. Alexa Stirling Fraser, of Ottawa, and Miss Glenna Collett, Providence, both former champions. They halved the first three holes and on the fourth Mrs. Fraser took a 1 up lead.

Finishing the first four holes in one over even fours, Mlle. Simone Thion de la Chaume, French and English champion, led Mrs. H. G. Higbie, of Detroit, 1 up.

Overcoming an early lead, Miss Maureen Orcutt, 20-year-old holder of the Metropolitan crown, passed the turn 1 up on Miss Rosalie Knapp, Glenhead, N. Y. Miss Knapp wavered and took sevens on the eighth and ninth, while Miss Orcutt made sixes.

SPORT COMMENT

by JAMES J. LONG

DON'T become alarmed about the Pirates nor begin to picture the promised pennant as fading away in the distance just because Donie Bush's flag chasers have lost two games in succession after winning 11 straight, incidentally being shut out in both instances, and are only three games ahead of the Giants and Cards, who are tied for second place.

There is generally a brief reaction after a long winning streak, and the best of clubs find it rather difficult to get going again immediately after being stopped when they have won an unusual number of games in a row.

In this case, besides, it must be borne in mind that the Bucs were up against exceptionally good pitching on both occasions, pitching practically of the air-tight sort.

High-class slabwork of the kind delivered by Dazzy Vance and Bill Doak Monday and yesterday rarely fails to win, regardless of the caliber of the opposition, so the two defeats may be attributed rather to the fact that Vance and Doak had two of their best days of the entire year, rather to any weakening on the part of the Pirates. Dazzy and Bil would have beaten any club in creation on those two afternoons. When such air-tight pitching is on tap—well, there just can't be any hitting.

At that there is no denying that the batting of the Buccaneers has been below form for some time.

Even last week, when they were winning nine games in six days, it was evident that the Bushmen were in a batting slump and that their victories were being scored mainly through the fine work of the pitchers, by hard fighting, constant hustling

FIGHT LIKE A CHAMP, JACK BEGS GENE.

By JACK DEMPSEY.

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—When I was champion I stepped into a ring not with the idea of defending my title, but with only the thought of whipping the man sent in against me. I hope Tunney does the same thing.

I gave him his crack at me—gave him plenty of them. I did not try any runaway battle with him in Philadelphia. He knows and the world knows that even if I put up a terrible fight, I kept stepping into him and tried to make a fight of it.

I wanted to mix it; tried to give the crowd some action. What about Tunney? What will he do this time? As champion he will fight to show that he is champion. Will he tear into me and give the crowd what it wants, or will he back pedal and jockey and sidestep and climb a bicycle? Will he really fight or will it be a "safety first" game with him? He said he came here to indulge in a "boxing contest." It seems that Tunney and I are all mixed up as to what the affair is going to be because I thought we were being paid in the total neighborhood of $1,500,000 to fight.

MOTOR SQUARE SPECIAL OFF FOR FIGHT TONIGHT

More than 125 boxing fans from this section will leave for Chicago tonight on the Motor Square special to attend the Dempsey-Tunney battle scheduled tomorrow night in Soldier Field.

"I AM READY, I WILL WIN," SAYS GENE

By GENE TUNNEY.

LAKE VILLA, Ill., Sept. 21.—I'm ready.

I don't think any champion has ever stepped into the ring to defend his title with more peace of mind than I enjoy right now.

Barring the breaks which are part and parcel of every fight, I don't see how Jack Dempsey can possibly win from me tomorrow night.

In the first place I have what we may call, for want of a better term, the "psychological edge." Dempsey has been beaten by me once and he will enter the ring weighed down by the realization that he has a long uphill battle before him to regain his title—a battle that is going to put Jack Dempsey's fighting heart to its severest test.

A fighting heart—I wonder just what that means? And I cannot help but question just how much good it is going to do Jack Dempsey.

In my mind's eye I have built up a perfect picture of just about how the fight will go. Those in Soldier Field who expect me to tear into Dempsey from the first are going to be saddened. I'll let Dempsey do the tearing and I'll save my strength for the time when I will need it most.

Champion Is Host To Disabled Marines

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—(INS.)—Gene Tunney has announced that he will provide transportation and tickets to the big battle to every disabled Marine in Chicago. The champion did this after a committee of the Marine Post of the American Legion called upon him and advised him of the plight of the crippled Marines. Tunney's only relative here to see the fight and pull for a Tunney victory is his brother, Thomas Tunney, a New York City policeman.

Fight Briefs

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—(UP.)—As special trains today began bringing more thousands of fight fans to Chicago for the Dempsey-Tunney battle, fight conditions stood as follows:

Seat sale reliably reported at more than $2,500,000, with a steady increase in ticket buying.

Two injunction suits to stop the fight dismissed, and only a slight chance of another's being filed.

Betting odds 6 to 5 on Tunney with Dempsey money predominating.

Hotels crowded to capacity as long standing reservations taken up by incoming crowds.

Counterfeit ticket scare grows as Rickard announces second "ring" flooding city with bogus cards.

Dempsey and Tunney, resting for fight, both predict victory and seem confident.

Weatherman predicts chilly but probably fair night of battle.

Question of referee excites much interest. Boxing Commission announces plan to have half a dozen at ringside and announce selection just before fight.

Long conference of fight managers and promoters with Boxing Commission leads to report of dispute over whether hands of boxers will be taped in dressing rooms or ring. Charges of Jess Willard's supporters that Dempsey had pounds of tape on hands at Toledo fight in 1919 revived.

Billy Gibson, Tunney's manager, reported to have proposed that Dempsey agree to forfeit purse to charity if Tunney is fouled. Leo Flynn, Dempsey's manager, reported to have agreed on condition that Gene would do the same if he was charged with stalling.

Liquor supply holds up despite raids by Federal prohibition agents, and price increases are reported only nominal.

FAST BOUTS FEATURE SHOW ON NORTH SIDE

Four fast bouts featured the amateur boxing show staged for the benefit of St. Vincent's School last night. Stanley Phillips, North Side, defeated Jerry Kucera, Pittsburgh Lyceum, in the headliner. Harry (Slam Bang) Taylor defeated Hughey Fetzer; Jimmy Joyce defeated Harry McIlraw, and Mike Tooney defeated George Puff in the other bouts.

FLAG LEAD CUT DOWN TO THREE GAMES

wet offering that the Pittsburgh batters did not hit over three or four drives on the nose and only one clean hit was recorded, that being a single by Lloyd Waner. The other hit was a fluke double off the bat of Johnny Gooch. Lee Meadows held the Robins to seven hits, but he had one very bad inning and that was enough to spill the beans.

So today the Pirates are three even games ahead of the Giants and Cardinals, who will be out to hustle right down the home stretch. The Giants, by the way, were interested spectators at yesterday's fray. The New Yorkers are enjoying two off days before they tackle the Pirates in a double bill tomorrow. They reached Pittsburgh from Cincinnati yesterday morning. The Cardinals went into a tie with the Giants by winning over the Phillies.

Manager Bush was undecided as to his slab selection for today, he having Aldridge, Kremer and Miljus ready for duty. Manager Robinson of the Dodgers was expected to send Jess Petty or Douglas McWeeney to the hill.

The Pirates bungled up their one big chance to jump ahead of the Dodgers as they sustained their second defeat of the week. Gooch dropped a little fly in left for a double to start the third. Meadows tried to sacrifice, but he fouled off the pitch. Gooch apparently was trying to get a good lead when Henline chucked the ball to second and Johnny was tagged out. That was very bad baseball. Any time a runner is caught off base with none out it is considered poor stuff. The inning was over in a hurry after that development.

Doak was on the business end of a squeeze play that gave the Dodgers their third run. One was out in the seventh when Butler singled. Henline's drive toward Traynor took a bad bound and went into left for a single, Butler going to third. Doak then bunted over Butler. Harris made a fast attempt to nail the runner at home, but Butler managed to beat the play.

IT'S TO BE A KNOCKOUT

There is some uncertainty as to whether or not the Dempsey-Tunney championship fight in Chicago tomorrow night will be ended by a k. o. wallop, but there is no element of uncertainty regarding the manner in which word pictures of the big fight will be presented in the

CHILLY SAUCE

By CHILLY DOYLE

THE majority of baseball players in expressing their opinions of the Tunney-Dempsey bout appear to pick the former champion. On the occasion of the clash of one year ago, men of the diamond were almost unanimous in naming Dempsey as the winner. That was quite natural, but where the verdict in that instance changed many people, there are numerous men of the diamond who are stringing along with Dempsey just as strong as before.

THE opinion of a diamond artist is not an expert pronouncement. At random I note that Benny Leonard and Packy McFarland are choosing Tunney as the winner. There are two men whose opinions should have weight.

THE ball-players like the old sock, and Dempsey is the symbol of the sock. Therein lies the reason for their choice of a large extent. Leonard and McFarland realize that Tunney is a master boxer and a glove exponent who fears nobody. Leonard and McFarland also know that Tunney has enough power in his blows to weaken anybody, including Dempsey. A boxer who could beat the lamented Harry Greb had to have something in his punches.

TUNNEY'S record, by the way, shows something like 30 knockouts. These may be a bit hard to explain by those who cannot give Gene any rating as a puncher. It is quite a tribute to Greb that the only setback ever administered to Tunney was handed out by Harry.

A FEW weeks ago I met Mike McTigue, light-heavyweight champion, who was on his way to an obscure training camp to begin work for a coming bout with Tommy Loughran. Mike thinks Tunney is a great champion, but he is doubtful as to whether Gene can trim Jack in the impending fight. In fact Mike would not be greatly surprised if Dempsey should win.

Wife Gives Her Views

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS.
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—If a woman's intuition means anything, then Estelle Taylor has already picked the winner in the Dempsey-Tunney battle. Estelle is so confident that Jack will win that she was all smiles today when I saw her at her apartment in the Edgewater Beach Hotel.

"You know," she said, "I have always bragged that I am psychic, that I have strange success in looking into the future. I can only see success ahead for Jack, when he enters the ring tomorrow night.

NOT NERVOUS

"You can remember how nervous and doubtful I was when he fought with Sharkey. I have none of those fears now. If I did Jack would soon dispel them. Wait until you see him. He is so cocky and so sure of himself. He looks marvelous. He isn't harassed and disturbed as he was when he met Tunney in Philadelphia. He knows that he is going to win and no one can put even the shadow of fear in his mind."

"Mind means everything too," Estelle went on. "I shall sit in this room, and concentrate tomorrow night. I don't want anyone with me but Miss Watson, my nurse, because I want to give Jack every thought—that is one thing that will help him. Perhaps it sounds silly, but oh I believe so firmly in sending thought messages to those you love."

"And if your intuition is wrong and he doesn't win?" I suggested.

"Then I shall say it is the right thing. It won't make any difference in my love for Jack, you know that," she replied. "But it means so much to him to get back the world's championship that I would be a poor wife if I didn't want him to get the thing that makes him happiest. It isn't the money he wants, but the crown—and the chance to prove it is possible to come back."

I couldn't help thinking of what Estelle said when she was revived from her fainting spell the night Jack knocked Sharkey out in the seventh round.

"I do hope," she said between her sobs, "that he hasn't hurt Mr. Sharkey too much."

Will Estelle again be able to say "I hope he hasn't hurt Mr. Tunney too much"?

PLANS WELCOME

She believes that when Jack returns to her at the Edgewater Beach Hotel immediately after the fight tomorrow night that she will welcome a conquering hero. If the Gene Tunney followers who have bet their bank roll on the ex-marine could hear Mrs. Jack Dempsey talk they would change their bets pronto.

Just to show that Estelle isn't worried, she said, after we finished discussing Jack's black tights trimmed in crimson that he will wear in the ring and Jack's fitness for the coming battle:

"Want to see my new clothes? The Chicago shops are wonderful. I have bought a lot of new dresses here and you will see they are just as smart as the New York styles."

Women are always feminine even on the eve of a great battle. Perhaps that is what makes them so charming—and Estelle is an engaging young person with her dark eyes, her smiles and her manner of talking about prize fights. She is so feminine that even when she discusses her husband batting as a pugilist, someway she never seems actually a part of his career as a prize fighter.

Yet in her small hands she really holds Jack's success, for he is so much in love with her that what she says, does and thinks is of overwhelming importance.

If her intuition is right that her husband will regain his title there will be no one any happier than Estelle, who is really in love with Jack Dempsey, the man—not the prize fighter.

Sharkey into a knockout. See?" And he winked a knowing wink.

LIKES DEMPSEY

"What's the lowdown on this shindy Thursday night?" I asked my m-a-n-w-i-t-h-the-inside-information.

"Same thing," he replied. "Get a li'l bet down on Jack. A word to the wise is sufficient."

Does he know anything? Well, maybe.

Next I exchanged conversation with one of the best of the New York scribes.

"Say," he said, "on paper I can't see a chance in the world for Tunney to lose. But, do you think I'd pick him to win? No, sir; not a chance. I've heard things, I have."

A little later, I ran into a fellow who has just been speaking with Nick the Greek, the famous plunger, who wins and loses hundreds of thousands without batting an eyelid.

"Hop on Dempsey," this little birdie told me. "I don't know how Nick is betting, because he never tells anybody until he puts up his dough and then sometimes he bets both ways for a stall, but I do know that his gang likes Dempsey.

"And speaking of Greeks, do you know that Jerry the Greek, Dempsey's trainer, is letting the old roll ride on Jack? Yep. He was telling me today that Dempsey told him to go ahead and plunge."

"Last year, I lose everything on Jack," Jerry told my friend, according to the latter's story to me, "and Jack he say, 'never mind, Jerry, next time you get it back. I tell you when.' And the other day he say, 'go ahead, Jerry. This time clean up.' So now I bet everything on him. Can't lose."

That didn't look so hot for my dope that Tunney would repeat his victory, but moral support wasn't long coming my way, for soon a former noted boxer hailed me at my table and unbosomed himself of this information:

"Tunney's a pipe. I've got it straight that one of the guys in this fight is in condition. That's Tunney. The other one isn't. That's Dempsey. Jack's in there for a final big chunk of dough for himself and Rickard and then he's through. It's practically all set for Tunney and Jack Sharkey to do the honors next year."

There was more along these lines. But I can only vaguely recall it, for by that time I was cutting out paper dolls along with the other guests.

Also got an inside tip last night that my information that Eddie Purdy of New York is going to referee the battle of open letters is all wet, like the rain of Saturday night and last night, which have made the weather nice and cool, in fact, a bit too much so for an evening of outdoor fistic festivities. Was introduced to Dave Miller of Chicago, whose friends told me he is a sure thing to handle the important assignment. Duke Barry, former boxing promoter of Connellsville, who is now sports editor of the Chicago Morning Telegraph, a weekly publication, tells me Miller unquestionably is the best referee in Chicago and the best he ever has seen perform anywhere. The latest on Henry Lytton, the millionaire clothing merchant and amateur referee, who has been getting a lot of plugging for the job in the local newspapers, is that he is likely to fill one of the judges' seats.

CROWS ARRIVE

The loop district hotels are a mass of jabbering humanity. Every train is bringing in huge gobs of fight fans and all are heading for this sector. One of the first specials blew in Monday night, coming from San Francisco. It contained a number of moving picture celebrities and boxers and former boxers. Others will follow from the Coast. Willie Ritchie, former lightweight champion, and Tom Kennedy, former white hope, were among the early native son arrivals. Ritchie is back in the ring again. He had two fights recently in California and won both of them.

Their hard work behind them, both Dempsey and Tunney are merely marking time before the bell rings for the battle. Dempsey expects to remain at his Lincoln Fields camp until the evening of the battle, being weighed there in the afternoon, while Tunney likely will break camp today and either go to the suburban home of a rich friend or come direct to his reserved bungalow atop the Sherman Hotel, where he will be held incommunicado.

BETTING IS LIGHT

The betting continues light. There was talk of a lot of Dempsey money having come into town, but so far it has not put in an appearance. This is not surprising, inasmuch as it also was scarce for the Sharkey fight until just before the men entered the ring. The odds still are 6 and 7 to 5, with Tunney the favorite.

The first of the Pittsburgh contingent of regular fightgoers to show up is Max Adler. He has been here more than a week. Others are coming in daily and those already here anxiously awaiting the arrival of the gang who will get in on Johnny McGarvey's special train the morning of the fight.

Gov. John S. Fisher of Pennsylvania will be one of the ringside notables at the battle, and will have for company other men high in political and business life in the Keystone state.

Promoter Rickard has announced his intention of moving up the time of the main bout as much as possible. He hopes to have the men in the ring at 9:30 o'clock, which is 10:30 Pittsburgh daylight saving time. It was originally announced the big fellows would get under way at 10 o'clock, or 11 o'clock Pittsburgh time. The first preliminary is scheduled for 8 o'clock.

FIGHT MAY BE FOGGED OUT

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.—(US.)—Big fights have been rained out, and even snowed out, but never before has the possibility existed of a championship match being fogged out. Heavy mists over Lake Michigan have made this contingency an interesting topic of discussion on the Dempsey-Tunney fight.

Interest High In Vets' Show Here Friday

Many local fight fans who are going to the Dempsey-Tunney fight in Chicago tomorrow are planning to return to Pittsburgh on Friday in time for the big fight at Duquesne Garden between Homer Robertson, colored middleweight star, of Boston, and Indian Jack Elkhart of Salt Lake City. The match has received the official O. K. of local fandom as both boxers are known to be terrific punchers and have never met before, although each has scored K. O. wins over the same opponents. Robertson, who is well known here, has been matched to fight George Courtney, Oklahoma middleweight, at Braves Field in Boston.

Interest of fight followers centers in the Indian, however, as this is his first appearance in Eastern rings. He is a replica of Jack Dillon, the famous Hoosier bear cat, in appearance build and style of fighting.

Ray Schafer, hard hitting middleweight of Bloomfield, will meet Charley Tarzan, Rochester light-heavy, in the semi-final. The Bloomfield boy has an excellent K. O. record and is popular with the fans because of his aggressive tactics. He'll meet a tough, willing mixer in Tarzan and a fast slam bang fight is looked for. Teddy Welsh, of McKeesport, and Young Rudy, of Charleroi, are the second bout on the bill. Two well known featherweights will open the show, which will be the first indoor boxing show of the local season.

As the affair is under the auspices of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and as all of the bouts promise plenty of action, it is expected that the big arena on Craig street will be packed to capacity.

and by timely hitting rather than walloping of the terrific sort.

THAT same slump no doubt aided Vance and Doak, with all due credit to the splendid pitching of that pair, in holding the league leaders runless for 18 consecutive innings and giving them a total of only eight hits in that period.

But batting slumps do not last forever, and there is good ground for the hope that the Buccaneers are just about due to come out of their latest one. When they do start to hit they may be expected to make up speedily for lost time and to perform more nearly like the team that possesses, when in form, one of the most powerful attacks the big leagues have seen in recent years.

THE ground lost in the last two days is not sufficient to affect a stout-hearted club like the Corsairs, nor to cause any fears for the safety of the pennant.

Following the departure of the Robins after today's game, the Giants will be encountered for a string of four contests, starting with a double-header tomorrow. Meanwhile St. Louis must play five games with Boston, so that in spite of their recent losses the Forbes Field athletes will have a snug advantage that only something in the nature of a clean sweep of the four games by the McGrawites will prevent the locals from still looking like pennant winners.

The Bucs still have a lead of three full games prior to the final meeting with Brooklyn today. That is a pretty comfortable margin in itself, but it is even greater when you consider that the greater part of it exists in the "Lost" column. Their nearest rivals, the deadlocked New York and St. Louis teams, have lost four games more than the Pirates and it is the "Lost" column that counts for most.

WORK ON NEW STATE BANK RUSHED

Work on the foundation of the American State Bank and Trust Company Building, Grant street and Sixth avenue, is proceeding rapidly. The contractor's schedule calls for completion of the 10 story structure by April 1, 1928.

The framework will be steel. Granite and limestone will be used in the walls of the first floor and mezzanine and the remainder will be in face brick. Henry Hornbostel is the architect.

The American State Bank and Trust Company will occupy the entire first floor and mezzanine floor. The interior will be done in imported marbles, special cast bronze and ornamental plaster.

A burglar proof vault of concrete and steel will be installed complete with electrical protection. The latest type of modern screen will be used in the tellers' cages. On the mezzanine floor will be directors' rooms, special offices and retiring rooms.

Nine floors of modern offices will be available. Marble corridors are planned throughout the building. There will be two high speed elevators. The eighth, ninth and tenth floors already have been leased for a long term. C. C. McKalup & Co. are the rental managers. The Hust Construction Company has the contract for the building.

The American State Bank and Trust Company was organized about six years ago. It transacts a general banking business with capital and surplus of more than $500,000 and deposits of more than $1,500,000.

BELMONT LEADS IN OHIO COAL OUTPUT

STEUBENVILLE, O., Sept. 21.—Belmont county continues to lead the state in coal production, federal figures for 1926 reveal. Out of a total of 24,871,074 tons loaded for shipment, Belmont county produced more than a third, or 8,385,213 tons. Jefferson county was second with 4,468,556 tons, and Athens, third, with 2,649,528.

VARE SEATING PROBLEM TO SENATORS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—(AP.)—What to do on the matter of temporarily seating Frank L. Smith of Illinois and William S. Vare of Pennsylvania is a question giving a number of senators concern.

Bound up in the answer are two other important questions: Reorganization of the Senate, in which the Republicans have a paper majority of one, counting the votes of Smith and Vare, and the number of votes that would be necessary to oust the Illinois and Pennsylvania senators later after further investigations of their primary expenditures.

Even some of the Democrats hold that Illinois and Pennsylvania should have full representation in the Senate before the vote on reorganization. The only way this can be afforded is to permit Smith and Vare to take the oath of office. Others, including Republicans as well as Democrats, insist that both should be "stopped at the door."

Those senators, Republicans and Democrats, favoring the temporary seating of the two senators-elect, argue now that only a majority vote would be necessary to unseat them later. Heretofore, it has been held generally that a two-thirds vote would be necessary.

The contention now is that the majority for unseating depends upon the form of the resolution proposed. A resolution for expulsion would require a two-thirds majority for adoption, it is held, but a majority would be sufficient to put through a resolution declaring Smith and Vare not entitled to their seats. The Lorimer and Newberry cases are cited as precedents.

The Vare case presents quite a problem. In it is involved not only the question of huge expenditures in the primary campaign, but also charges of irregularities in the general election.

William B. Wilson, Vare's Democratic opponent, has brought a contest on the basis of these charges and if this is pressed, and there has been no indication from any quarter that it will not be, it will be months before the Senate reaches a final vote.

Involved in such a contest would be the counting of more than 1,000,000 votes cast in the general election in Pennsylvania last November. Most of these ballots now have been ordered preserved and it is the plan now to move them to Washington as soon as the Senate has provided the necessary funds.

CHURCH SEEKS SPECIAL FUND

On Tuesday, September 27, the sodality of the church will hold an inaugural card party and reception in the guild hall of the church. The committee in charge includes Alice Larkin, Lillie Schmid, Ann Baker, Clara McGreevey, Margaret Reilly, Catherine Burns, Blanche E. Frei, Virginia M. Henderson, Eleanor Flynn, Esther Roeser, Margaret Sweeney and Julia Dorner.

Federal prohibition agents yesterday raided houses at 6 and 7 Lawrence street, McKees Rocks. At the latter address they seized a 50-gallon still, 90 gallons of moonshine whisky and arrested Frank Billy. At 6 Lawrence street they arrested Thomas Billy and seized a 25-gallon still and 15 gallons of moonshine. In a raid at 2036 Fifth avenue a 150-gallon still and 20 gallons of whisky were seized.

GAS COMPANY LEASES 75 MILES OF PIPE LINE

OIL CITY, Pa., Sept. 21—Seventy-five miles of eight-inch pipe line has been leased by the Northern Pipe Line Company to the North Penn Gas Company, to be used in carrying gas to the lines of the Allegheny Gas Company, which supplies Elmira, Corning and Southern New York cities. This line was laid in 1905 and used for transportation of crude oil.

Reward Ablest Workmen; Two Ways to Win Loyalty

By B. C. FORBES

AN interview with a gatekeeper who has been made a director of his company, Procter & Gamble, and announcement of awards for superior craftsmanship to artisans who have worked on the new Hearst Publications Building in New York, appeared in the morning newspapers. They afford clews to why the United States is so very much more productive per worker than Britain or France or Germany.

LET a workman come from Ireland or Italy or England, and once he finds his feet here he increases his production apparently without strain. What is the explanation?

The explanation is mental more than anything else—more than climate or wages or living conditions. You and I know how much better and how much more work we can do when our heart and soul are in it than when we are uninterested, indifferent or grouchy.

JUST consider the names and nationalities of the 12 men receiving certificates of excellent workmanship and gold medals from the Committee on Recognition of Craftsmanship of the New York Building Congress.

George R. Henry, carpenter; Joseph Murphy, bricklayer; Thomas Mahoney, metal lather; John Lorretti, concrete worker; Ugo Buchignani, cement finisher; James Snyder, steamfitter; P. Flannery, steamfitter's helper; Frank Hilowsky, plumber; Henry Meyer, plumber's helper; E. Somers, electrician; Charles Levey, electrician's helper; Guy Vaughn, plasterer.

WHY does not every large organization have a plan for making similar awards? Why should not industrial and other workers in big plants have their records closely followed by a capable committee and gold medals—supplemented by money—awarded once a year?

IS there not room for poor work, for fair work, for superb work, in every line of business? Progressive concerns now make much ado—very properly—over the salesmen who lead the field. Is it not quite as important to give suitable encouragement to other classes of employes, particularly those engaged in production? It can hardly be questioned that there is great opportunity for bringing about financial benefits to a company in its production departments as there is in the sales department.

NOT a few companies now reward those who earn notable records for punctuality and regularity—some give days off and others give money prizes, and, of course, these records are taken into account when promotions have to be made.

Rewards for conspicuously meritorious work would carry the underlying idea a long step farther.

TEN years from now it probably will be the rule rather than the exception for corporations to have rank-and-file employes on their boards of directors. So far as I know, organizations which have taken this enlightened step have found the results very encouraging.

Why not credit and inspire fresh loyalty by taking such action now instead of waiting until very late in the day, when action may be interpreted as having been grudgingly taken.

A MAN of foreman rank, earning $250 a month, told me the other day that he switched some time ago from one company to another and added: "This company is as different to work for as white is from black. There was no spirit of loyalty among the workers in the last organization. Every fellow had the feeling that he might be dismissed without a moment's notice—that was the general practice. In the company I now work for the men not only feel secure in their jobs, but nearly all of them take pride in doing their best because they feel they always get a square deal."

I HAPPEN to know both companies—they are very big. Within five years I'm quite sure the latter company will eclipse the one whose men don't feel cordial towards it.

Rewards and directorships for exemplary workers are two means of gaining the desired end.

CHEAP STOCKS ATTRACT BUYERS

NEW YORK, Sept. 21—(AP)—Low-priced shares attracted the bulk of buying in today's stock market. The absorption was especially large in certain of the rubber, public utility, motion picture, oil, packing and chemical issues.

Purchases of railway securities were restricted in large part by the sharp recession in car loadings and a desire to await more light on the character of the impending August statements of income. Consequently, with an evident disposition manifested to veer away from many high-priced stocks which recently have undergone convulsive fluctuations, traders were eager to follow leads into new fields when signs of concerted buying began to appear.

The movement in prices, however, was not altogether upward. Intervals of weakness resulted in some of the leaders, International Harvester, Dupont, Baldwin, Allied Chemical, Texas Gulf Sulphur, General Railway Signal, American Smelting and some other stocks which command a big speculative following. Manhattan Electrical Supply, which had a sensational drop several months ago, was hammered down 4 points to 19, a new low for the year, and Foundation Company dipped to its minimum figure for 1927.

Railroads fluctuated in a confused manner, several southern and southwestern issues going up, while some of the coalers and Kansas City Southern, and Texas and Pacific lost ground. New York Central, after weakening early, ran up briskly to the highest level in 75 years.

Mercantile shares were in brisk demand and Armour "A," which has been sluggish in recent buying demonstrations in the packing group, went up over 2 points on large transactions. Wilson & Co "A" also made a good gain.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—The cotton market opened firm today at an advance of 12 to 20 points on buying promoted by relatively firm Liverpool cables and a firmer technical position after the declines late yesterday.

Further southern selling or liquidation eased prices off several points from the opening figures, but buying continued and the undertone of the market was steady. December sold off from 20.68c to 20.58c, but was holding around 20.61c at the end of the first hour, when the general list was about 19 to 20 points net higher.

Private cables reported trade calling, covering and continental buying in the Liverpool market, and said there had been improved sales of cotton cloths to India with Chinese advices more encouraging.

The outlook for warmer weather in the western belt was considered favorable and offerings increased, December selling off to 20.38c and March to 20.60c, or about 2 to 7 points net lower. Conflicting opinions were expressed as to the showing of the weekly report of the weather bureau, but as prices reached yesterday's low levels, demand seemed to improve somewhat and was said to include trade buying. This steadied the market, and by mid-day December had rallied to 20.54c, with the general list showing net advances of about 9 to 16 points. A private crop report issued this morning made the condition 53.8 and the indicated yield 12,542,000 bales.

Hardware Trade Expectant.

General conditions in the hardware field are in a very satisfactory condition at the present time, according to Hardware Age. The western and middle western sections of the country are now reporting highly satisfactory crops and the retailers there are confident of a substantial fall and winter trade as a result. Trade is already increasing in volume over the entire northwestern district, and stocks are being filled in for seasonal lines, with prices holding firm in practically all lines. In the eastern sections of the country business is in a normally active state. Orders are being received for winter stocks. Snow shovels and other winter requirements are showing considerable activity at pres time. Prices are steady in most lines. Collections are fairly good.

The trend of the machinery and machine tool business has taken a sharp turn upward. The improvement is quite general and extends over a wide range in the equipment field, American Machinist reports. The monthly index number for machine tool orders, issued by the National Machine Tool Builders' Association, shows a decided gain. The figure for August stands at 165, using the average for 1922-23-24 as a base of 100.

Labor Day Cuts Traffic.

Loading of revenue freight for the week ended September 10 totaled 949,477 cars, or 177,101 under the previous week and 32,526 under the same week last year, but an increase of 13,972 cars over the same week in 1925, the American Railway Association announced. Part of the loss in the week of September 10 was attributable to the fact that Labor Day was included in that period.

A. P. I. Reports Oil Decrease.

United States daily average crude oil output for the week ended September 17 totaled 2,494,550 barrels, a decrease of 19,550 barrels from the preceding week, according to the American Petroleum Institute.

Seminole Output Lower.

Seminole crude oil production in 24 hours ended 7 a. m. September 20 was 424,410 barrels, a decline of 2,615 barrels from the day before.

Breaks Curtailment Order.

The Blackwell Oil Company yesterday opened its wells on the Little River lease in Seminole area of Oklahoma, but declined to divulge production, which is estimated at 22,000 barrels daily. The action is the start of a legal battle to determine whether restriction can be placed on this pool.

Water in Yates Oil Pool.

Gulf Production Company's well No. 1 Thompson in the Yates pool, West Texas, which came in last week making estimated 10,000 barrels daily, is showing 20 per cent sulphur water. Mid-Kansas well No. 3 Yates, on the west side of the river, is showing 5 per cent sulphur water. Both wells are on the slope of the structure and the appearance of sulphur water is disappointing to operators in this section.

Monongahela Steel Shipments.

August shipments of iron and steel products over the Monongahela River in August totaled 102,931 tons, the greatest volume in any month since the revival of river transportation in this district. Total for first eight months of this year was 565,510 tons, which was more than for the entire years 1923, 1924 or 1925. Total in 1926 was 619,711 tons.

Bad-Order Cars Decrease.

Freight cars in need of repair September 1 totaled 141,024 or 6.2 per cent of the number on line, according to the American Railway Association. This was a decrease of 7,348 cars under the number reported August 15, when there were 148,346 or 6.5 per cent, and 20,356 cars under last year. Poland Orders Mack Trucks.

Recent strength in Mack Truck common stock undoubtedly is based largely on the company's recent receipt of a good-sized order for commercial vehicles from Poland. Mack is understood to have been offered originally an order for approximately 2,000 trucks to cost something like $12,000,000 with the proviso Mack finance the purchase. This the management declined to undertake, and the order was then cut down somewhat to a size which the purchaser could finance itself. The exact size of the order as it now stands has not been made public, but it is one of the largest Mack has ever received, and it is believed that subsequent orders will be placed which will bring the total number of vehicles shipped to Poland close to 2,000 units.

Mack Earnings Estimate.

Mack Trucks net income for three months to September 30 are not likely to show much gain over the $2.71 a share reported for the common in the June quarter. There is a possibility that third quarter earnings will be somewhat below the preceding period. This means nine months net income will be something less than $6,000,000 or $7 a share on the common. While it is too early to forecast results of the final three months, the fact that the company will be busily engaged on the Polish order should make December one of the best final quarters the company has ever had.

Canadian Marconi-R. C. A. Deal.

According to a Montreal dispatch, Lazard Bros. & Co., Ltd., have purchased a majority of Canadian Marconi Company stock. The trust will hold voting control and will be vested in three trustees, two to be nominated by Lazard Bros. and one by British Marconi Company.

Park & Tilford Lending Money.

Park & Tilford, Inc., is reported to be lending on call close to $1,500,000 in the money market. Ability to lend this sum would indicate that the projected deal whereby American Druggists Syndicate was to purchase the stock of Overholt whisky has been consummated. Officials are noncommittal on the subject. D. A. Schulte, president of Schulte Retail Stores Company, which controls both Parke & Tilford and American Druggists Syndicate, returned from Europe a few days ago. The question of a dividend on Parke & Tilford stock has awaited his return and it is thought that an announcement and dividend policy may be made very shortly.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—(AP.)—The number of stocks traded on the curb exchange increased to a considerable extent during the day. Recent variations in prices and various developments were effective in bringing in orders in large volume on both sides of the market, causing mixed movements and an irregular tone. The most important feature, however, was the appearance of accumulation again in a number of stocks that had been active and strong but had been placed under pressure from various sources in the past few days. After the forenoon passed, the market showed a strengthening tendency with the leading stocks in demand at advances. Prominent in the trading was an advance of 2½ points in Curtis Publishing, bringing that stock up to the new high record of 228½.

Bancitaly was regarded with special interest because of its recent movements and its action had an influence in causing a better tone in many other stocks. After advancing over 2 points to 118⅞, it had a reaction to below its opening price, but moved up again sharply. Aluminum of America advanced 2 points and Swift & Co. continued strong, selling above 125. Yellow Taxi, which has been moving up gradually for some time, made a further advance of ½ to 29. Celanese, after a fractional advance to 167⅝, dropped 2 points and Cuban Tobacco certificates yielded 5 points to 50 on a few sales. Gillette Safety Razor dropped a point.

Utilities were fairly active, some showing pronounced strength. Penn Water Power rose over a point to 60½ and American Gas and Electric and United Gas Improvement also moved up a point.

New York Central new stock made a new high at 167½. Pittsburgh and Lake Erie rose over 4 points to 174.

Vacuum Oil was a strong feature in the petroleum group.

Fuels More Active In Local Market

Trading on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange was a little more active during the early hours today, with the sales list displaying a somewhat broader tendency. Arkansas Gas, which had been rather quiet for several days, came into the market early, and there was some spirited bidding for the issue around previous closing prices.

There was no information in the street regarding the company's rumored deal with the Cities Service interests, but traders were inclined to attribute the increased activity to an approaching statement on this matter. One rumor is that Cities Service will take over the Arkansas company's gas business, leaving the oil end of the company in possession of its present owners, while another story, heard more recently, is that Cities Service will take the concern over as a complete unit.

Lone Star Gas was moderately active at 48, the price at which several hundred shares changed hands yesterday when the stock sold ex-dividend 50 cents a share. A small lot of American Vitrified Products sold early at 55½, off 1¼ points from the last previous sale.

The 50 per cent reduction in the Waverly Oil class A dividend, announced yesterday, was reflected in further weakness in that issue which sold today at a new low of 35 as against the close last night at 38. Dividend on the stock was cut from a $3 annual basis to $1.75 by declaration of a quarterly payment of 37½ cents.

Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt was in good demand around 36 with several hundred shares changing hands at that level. Standard Sanitary was steady.

Calling of the Blaw Knox preferred was reflected in higher bids for the common, but there was very little stock for sale around the existing market. Directors declared only the regular quarterly payment of 50 cents on the common shares.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, Sept. 21.—Although there were no sales in the raw sugar market early today, the undertone was firmer and offerings were light and only at higher levels. [illegible] with Cuban held at [illegible]. Raw sugar futures opened irregular at 1 point decline to 1 point advance, but rallied sharply on covering and renewed buying by trade and Cuban interests, with prices at midday 3 to 6 points net higher. The upturn was due to advices from Cuba stating that, in spite of some opposition, it was believed that restriction of production would be resorted to, as most of the producers were in favor of the proposals. The only change in the refined sugar situation was a better withdrawal demand, with prices unchanged at 5.90c to 6.10c for fine granulated.

BUGS BAER Says

CHICAGO, Sept. 21.

JACK DEMPSEY tossed a paid-up telegram at Gene Tunney yesterday that has Chicago by the ears.

These two old graduates of the sesqui-centennial came out here for a class reunion. Everything was fine until they turned sweethearts and started writing letters to each other.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER.

Dempsey's first letter was the oil can that collected the fire insurance. He asked Tunney five leading questions about the Philadelphia fight and dared Eugene to answer them without consultating the dictionary.

Now, when you attack Tunney's collected education you are touching him in a soft-boiled spot. Tunney refused to answer the five questions until his attorneys were rushed out by second-class freight.

Dempsey's most unethical query is, "Why didn't you walk around the block?

Jack doesn't mean why Tunney didn't walk around the block on his hands or skid around on one shoe. He wants to know why Tunney didn't borrow that 20 grand off Rickard instead of Boo Boo Hoff.

Tunney could have got it from Rickard by simply walking around a Philadelphia block from the Sylvania Hotel, where Hoff lived, to the Ritz-Carlton where Rickard was flopping.

When Tunney inhaled that question, he refused to answer. He brushed his pride up into a big pompadour and pulled his neck in like a turtle in the consomme season.

Gene calls Dempsey's letter trash. If that is so, it looks as if the fight should be held in a waste basket.

According to Tunney's answer, Dempsey is unsportsmanlike. Gene winds up by slapping on a postscript boasting that he wrote his letter to himself.

He also may have signed that Hoff contract himself.

Tunney answered none of Dempsey's five fat questions. So the letter writing contest is as one-sided as a pain in the right ear.

Tunney's insinuation that Dempsey cannot write a letter is the real unsportsmanlike feature of the epistle tournament. Dempsey can write letters, for I got one from Jack only last week.

Here is the way it ran: "Dear Bugs, having nothing to do I will write to you. Having nothing to say, I will close. Jack Dempsey."

ON "LET THEM RAVE"

SOME WIVES take their Husbands for BETTER or worse. Others just take them
For GRANTED.
There are, of course, many Ways husbands CAN be Taken, but none should be Taken too SERIOUSLY.
HUSBANDS like to be Treated KINDLY, touched
Lightly, handled GENTLY,
And generally
Catered to, CARESSED and
Cared for just like
Other MEN. Or else they Like to be LEFT ALONE.
A husband, after all, is Only a MAN,
Married. It does not CHANGE the Brute, though
It time it may
TAME him.
But as they undoubtedly
MEAN well, they should be Broken in GENTLY. The Husband who is allowed to SAY all he wants
At home rarely DOES much
Outside.
It is the MAN who is
NOT allowed to
Get things off his CHEST
That "steps out."
So let them RAVE!

Defeat of Judges' Slate Big Victory for People

A great political victory has been won by the people of Allegheny county.

Our courts are free from the taint of political control.

The "slate" of the bosses has been smashed.

For that the upright citizens of Pittsburgh and Allegheny county have reason to feel the thrill of elation. They have been participants in an impressive drama in which the forces in behalf of purity of the courts tendered a stinging rebuke to forces representing the sinister side of our political activities.

The political machine did not meet with an entire defeat, but it did receive a crushing and crippling blow. Centering almost its entire strength on an effort to put its judgeship slate into office, it made a sorry showing in that respect.

Had there been serious opposition to its other candidates, it is fair to assume that the bosses' "indorsement" would have been more of a handicap than a help, in the face of public opinion, now so thoroughly aroused as a result of pre-primary outrages.

Let the political machine and Max Leslie get what little satisfaction they can from the situation. The great, silent force of independent citizenship has "tasted blood" at last!

Our courts remain free—LET US GIVE THANKS to a Decent Citizenry.

Pittsburgh Disgraced By Election Murders

Ballots, Not Bullets, Must Decide Contests at the Polls.

Ballots, not bullets, decide elections the American way.

Residents of Pittsburgh who hold our traditional freedom of choice and opinion as a hallowed heritage from our fathers are shocked by the un-American recourse to the bullet.

Men lie dead here because of passions in breasts of partisans unworthy to be classed as citizens.

Men felled by bullets of election-mad assassins perished in Pittsburgh yesterday because the slayers were men determined their victims should not exercise the rights of citizenship. At least, indirectly—perhaps more directly than the majority is aware—pre-election shootings as well as other disorders, were the result of insane greed for power and control by rival factions of the political machine.

All of us are responsible in some measure. We have permitted to grow unchecked a system of deplorable election practices which destroys liberty guaranteed to all by our constitution. Passiveness has permitted the development of a monster.

Decent citizens of Pittsburgh will not tolerate the arbitrament of the bullet instead of the ballot. There will be no evasion of the community responsibility for the crimes that have been perpetrated, but there will be a demand that the greater degree of blame be placed where it belongs.

The American ballot box is sacred AND MUST NOT BE SULLIED BY UNCLEAN OR BLOODY HANDS.

Let Us Give Our President Hearty Pittsburgh Welcome

President Coolidge has accepted Pittsburgh's invitation to take part in the ceremonies incident to the observance of Founder's Day at Carnegie Institute.

October 13, the date of the event, coincides with the opening of the twenty-sixth international exhibition in the art gallery, one of the branches of the institute, of which Andrew Carnegie was the founder and in whose memory this and similar occasions are of annual occurrence.

President Coolidge will find himself among friends in Pittsburgh. He will not need to be assured of that fact, however. That he was well aware of it was indicated when he continued in his cabinet two residents of this city as secretaries of the treasury and labor departments.

He will find here friends who have been loyal supporters of his policies. And we of Pittsburgh will greet a true friend when we extend our welcome to President Coolidge.

Prepare to make that welcome as sincere in spirit as it will be in enthusiasm.

Sir Oliver Dances

Sir Oliver Lodge, eminent British man of science, and 76 years old to boot, went to a party at Leeds and danced all night. Which caused surprised queries.

"I have always enjoyed dancing extremely," explained Sir Oliver. "Dancing is excellent exercise, especially for those who are not so young as they were. Modern dancing is easy, not too exacting, and a most pleasant way in which anyone can take exercise."

Only a little while ago dancing was liberally damned. Today the attacks have lessened in number and violence. That's because many thousands of people have found out, with Sir Oliver Lodge, that the pleasures of the polished floor are salutary as well as enjoyable.

In California

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 21.—Hollywood boulevard is the Broadway of the west coast. You see the same theatrical stars, the same types of blondes and brunettes and vaselined young men swashily sucking their teeth that you see in any hour on Broadway.

This morning I passed Al Jolson, Wilson Mizner, Elsie Janis, Grant Clark, Ward Crane, Will Morrissey and several others of the Longacre clan in a few blocks walk. And in front of a little book shop a well-known movie director in pith helmet, knickers, puttees and carrying a megaphone was discussing with volatile gestures some subject with a movie queen.

The pavement crowds swept up to them and stopped unabashed until they moved away arm in arm, trying desperately to appear nonchalant. The street is brittle with movies, jewelry stores, salons catering to the lacey necessities of life and cafes.

Its architectural tone differs from Broadway in that here and there are colonial fronts from which one may emerge through French windows on to sunlit terraced lawns. Or there may be a realtor's tiny bungalow creeping with blooming roses next to a skyscraper. But you have a feeling of even thicker sophistication than on old Broadway.

And Hollywood boulevard has more types than Broadway. The ladies whom you suspect live a little lightly and with no serious thought of the morrow are distinct patterns. They go in for effects blending with lisps and baby stares.

Three of the best known newsies once howled of murder and scandal on Broadway corners. Movie attendance in Hollywood seems greater than anywhere in America. Someone tells me there are those who take box lunches to continuous shows.

A gentleman with a Vandyke shined my shoes on Hollywood boulevard and a Japanese gentleman with an Oxonian accent served a soda water in a drug store. Such types have drifted here, tried vainly to be cinematized and finally took the first job at hand. They are those who wait.

Hollywood maidens think nothing of flagging an auto and bumming a ride home. And a neat conceit is to dress as twins—featuring giddy foulard neck scarves. Slave bracelets jangle beyond the elbow. Sandals are plentiful. While the men wear rakish Basque berets and mustaches that are only visible under a microscope. Burnsides, too, are popular among the young bloods, who have them snipped into a map of Italy shape. George Ade once said a hair lip was a misfortune but sideburns was a man's own fault.

Every Hollywood homeowner has a grinning Japanese gardener. In the early morning, wearing funny native hats, they are followed by their women who dog trot at their heels in flowing kimonos. They live in an oyster can shanty district and are ingratiatingly polite. If they symbolize the yellow peril—bring on your war.

At one of the studios, featuring comic films, everybody—including players, title writers, scenariasts and such—come to work and leave by whistle. Still I suppose to do comic work you must have a comic atmosphere.

Autos of movie stars are easy to discern—although a few have a sedate appearance. In the main they are of striking color and design, dazzling with all sorts of fancy trimmings from pedestal spotlights to chime horns that sound like a cathedral somehow gone wrong. There are silken furnishings with radio attachments and some of the door monograms can be seen a block away. The movie folk know value of advertising and after all they are no more flamboyant than many players of the speaking stage.

One movie actor, for instance, recently hired a sky writer to spiral over his Beverly home and have his name puffed in smoke for the benefit of his afternoon tea guests. It cost him $600. Ten years ago he made $40 a month.

Garrett P Serviss Says:

Light as a Grower

NATURE has usually been held up as the model of efficiency. We have often pointed the finger of shame at ourselves because we fall so far behind in this respect. It is some comfort, then, to know that nature's lauded efficiency is not after all, everything that it is cracked up to be, at least not when considered from our viewpoint. Thus nature has a great process, called photosynthesis, on which plant growth depends. Now, it appears that man, despite his imperfections, is able to improve on nature's application of this great process.

In the presence of light the green matter in leaves, called chlorophyl, is able to build up the plant from carbon dioxide in the atmosphere. But nature does not always proportion these things to the best advantage.

Expert investigators have been working these things out in the Thompson Institute for Plant Research at Yonkers on the Hudson. They have sowed spring wheat there and harvested it only thirty-five days after the seed fell into the ground. They have grown lettuce in three weeks, and brought up red clover to the flowering stage in thirty-eight days. In accomplishing this they have used artificial light to supplement daylight and have regulated the heat and the composition of the atmosphere enveloping the plants.

Photosynthesis in nature, Dr. John M. Arthur affirms, is a very inefficient operation; only about one per cent of the energy that falls on the plant is utilized! After hearing that we need not blush so much over the performances of our engines.

Here is a great chance for the "efficiency expert," suggests Dr. Arthur. Only add a few tenths of one per cent to the efficiency of photosynthesis and an enormous increase of total energy fixed in plant growth by nature would be available. Green plants do not always get as much carbon dioxide as they can utilize. This fact has long been known.

"These facts," says Dr. Arthur, "indicate a means of increasing the efficiency, yet no application was made until the recent World War. Then under pressure of food shortage in Germany, processes were perfected by Riedel and others for scrubbing gases from combustion of coal, coke and charcoal to produce carbon dioxide. The gas was piped into greenhouses among growing plants. With high temperature and high light intensity a concentration of less than one-half of one per cent of carbon dioxide will about double the dry weight of plant tissue produced."

In the meantime the Bureau of Plant Industry at Washington has been experimenting with the effects of regulating the daily period of illumination to which plants are subjected. "In some plants," say Messrs. Garner and Allard, "flowering is favored by relatively short days, while in others reproductive activity is induced by long days."

Spend Wisely

YOU like to have people think you are more important than you really are.

So you do things that would be warranted only by a much larger income.

You think that the employes do not know how much you get.

You put up a good bluff at authority, dress better and spend more than the average salaried man could in your position. You imagine that this will make the other employes respect you more.

It has gone on so long that it is getting hard for you to keep up with the pace you established for yourself.

The showdown is bound to come and it worries you.

Your salary has not advanced.

Not being accustomed to the things you have tried to ape, you do not spend money as a person who knows values would spend.

Do you think those whom you have tried to deceive would come to your aid if you needed money badly and at once?

Probably they would only blame you for your foolishness.

No, Kings Can't

By DR. FRANK CRANE.

Shortly after he had been made King of Rumania, little Michael was playing with his toys. He had been told he was not like other people. It was said to him: "You can do as you will and others must agree it is right."

While he was playing the nurse came and informed him that he must have his face washed. He didn't want his face washed. He was busy playing.

He said: "I am King now and I can do as I wish. If I want to play with my toys I will—I have that right."

This is in line with the popular notion and also the infantile notion that kings can do as they please, the higher the station a man occupies the more free he is.

Nothing is farther from the truth.

The more money you have, the higher your position and altogether the more important personage you are, the more you are hampered by convention.

Kings' sons and daughters cannot marry people they want to, but their consorts are chosen for them by reasons of state.

Think of having to marry and live with the homely Princess Hogenheimer when you hanker after beautiful Mary Brown with violet eyes.

And that is not the worst of it. Somebody looks after your food and lets you eat only certain things. You are allowed to drink only so much. You may have 42 uniforms, but somebody picks them out for you and tells you when you must wear them.

Wotan, in the Wagner operas, was the supreme king, yet somehow he was controlled by the writings upon his spear.

As far as that is concerned, the Creator cannot do as He pleases. There is one thing we can do that He can't. We can do wrong.

The Creator can do no wrong; He can't make mistakes; He can't neglect His duty.

Man is endowed with the divine privilege of doing wrong, of committing error and of soldiering on his job. As far as we can see man, the lower down in the scale of the social ladder he is the truer it is, he constitutes the only personage who can do as he pleases.

No. If you want liberty, freedom and the right to follow your own sweet will, stay down. Don't climb. For the higher you go in the social scale the more you are circumvented.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

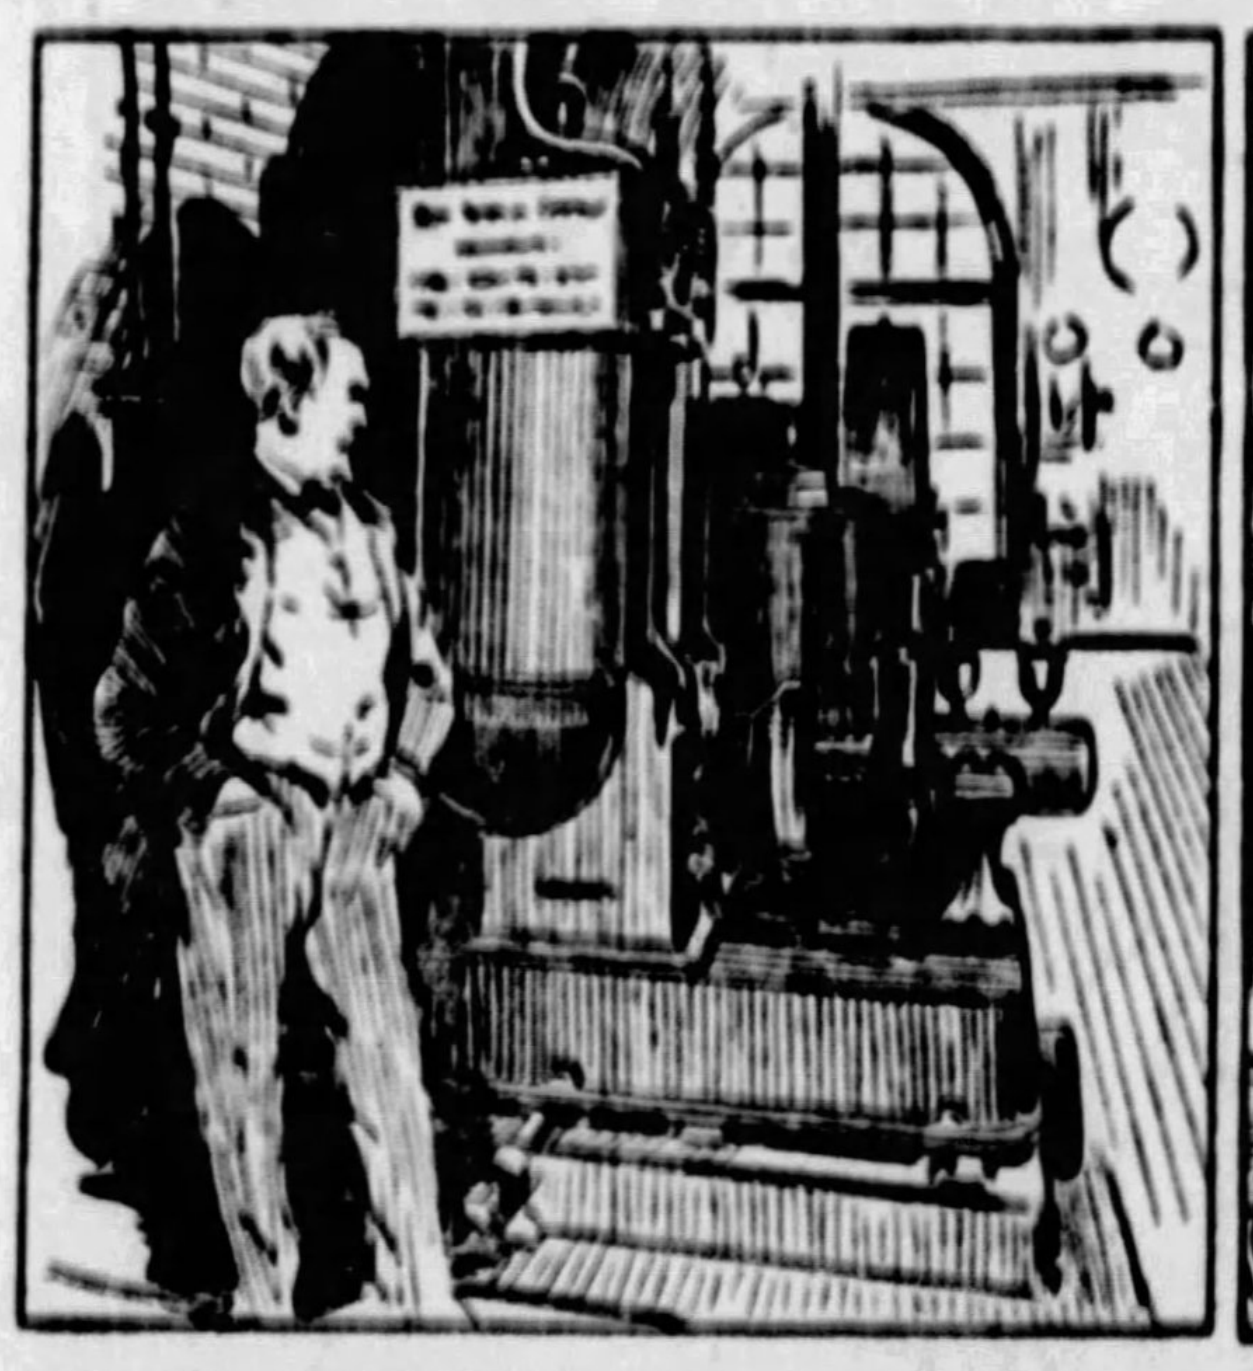
Cure-All

MANY must suffer from manifold cares, flurries and worries and doubts and despairs; many go fretting through all the day long, scarcely a sunbeam and seldom a song falls to their lot as they trudge on their way, seeing life hopelessly barren and gray. Yet there's a cure-all each one could apply, balm for all trouble and bliss for each sigh. Would you know how to put shadows to flight? Think: "Someone loves me!" and all will be right! Think of the eyes that will glow when you come, think of the peace of the place you call home, think with what infinite patience and care somebody—loving you—waits for you there! Would you escape every burden and blight? Think: "Someone loves me!" and watch earth grow bright.

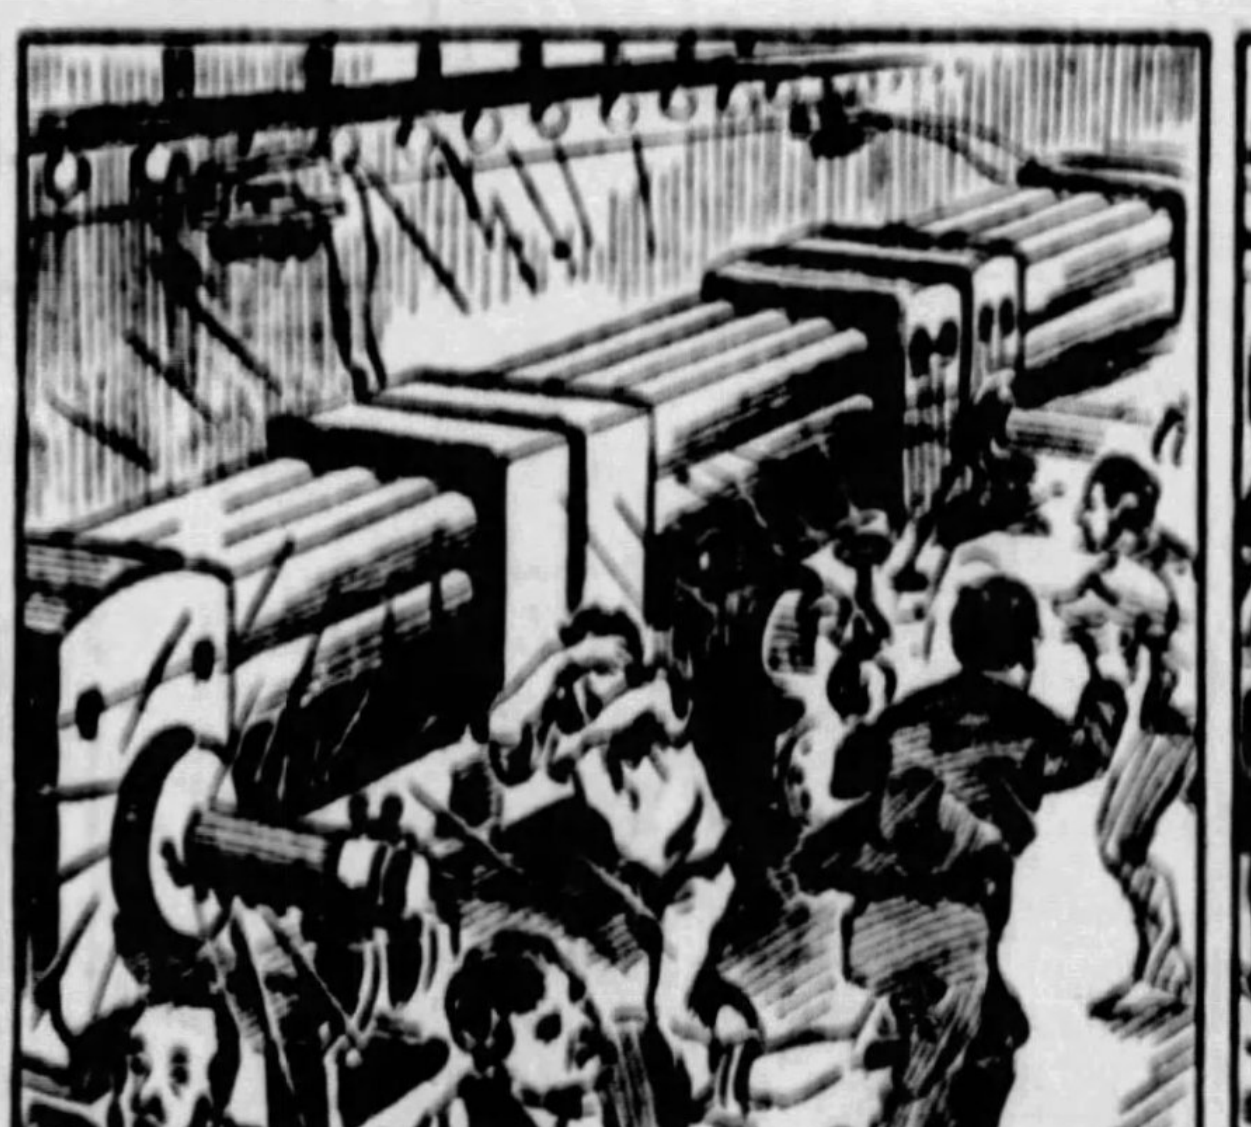
THE LIFE OF THOMAS A. EDISON

(Authorized and Endorsed by Mr. Edison)

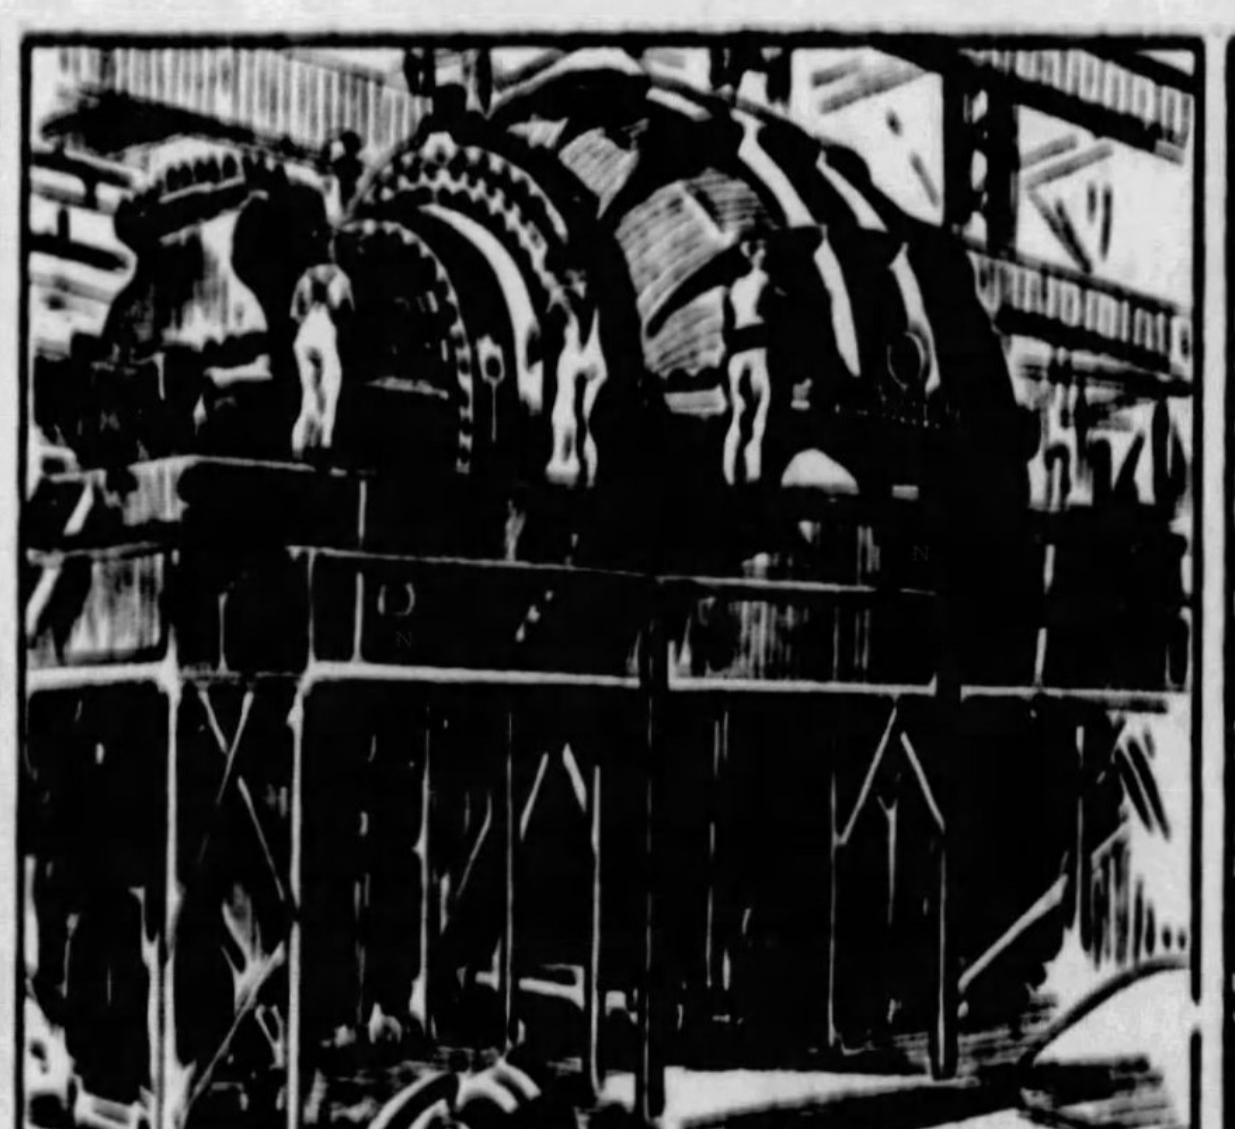
Text by Arthur J. Palmer
Drawings by Frank Kuchenmeister



AT 255 and 257 Pearl street, New York, Edison established his first power-house, with the exception of the experimental station in Menlo Park. Six "Jumbo" dynamos were installed and New York was ready for its first taste of incandescent electric lighting. The picture shows Edison beside his first improved dynamo.

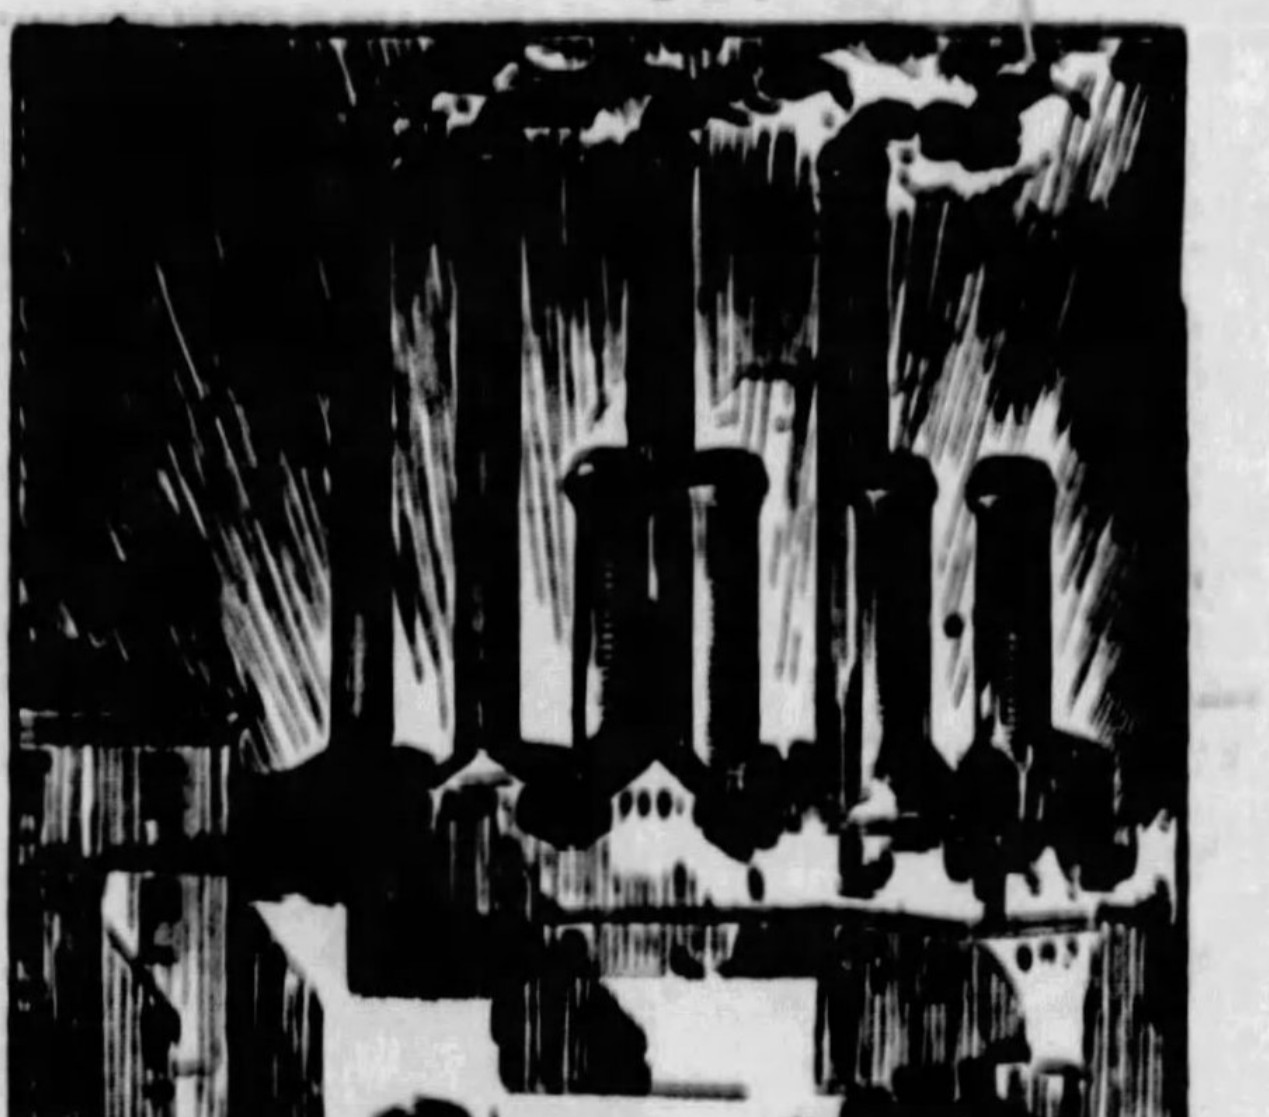


EVERYTHING was ready at old Pearl street. First one engine was started to see how things were going to work, then another was started. What a circus! One engine would stop and the other speed up and the room was filled with electric flashes. The men ran for their lives. Then Edison stepped forward and shut off the power.



© 1927 by King Features Syndicate, Inc. Great Britain rights reserved

WHETHER in those early days even Edison ever pictured such a scene as this we do not know. How tiny and weak appears the "Jumbo" dynamo of old Pearl street days beside this giant generator installed in 1926 in the New York power house. It develops 80,000 horse-power and is the most powerful machine on earth.



IN all our principal cities the sight of power-houses pouring forth their smoke stands as a tribute to Edison, who gave the world a new light and made night as livable as day. The giver of such a gift will need no monument beyond his contribution of incandescent electrical illumination.
